A Baby Most Welcome
Well Done and Nobly
Bourbons Never Learn
Honor for Japan

—By Arthur Brisbane—

HEARST RANCH, San Simeon, Cal., Aug. 16—The arrival of a Lindbergh baby boy is good news for the whole world.

Nothing can ever wipe out the sorrow and disgrace of the dreadful kidnaping tragedy, but it is a comfort to know that this little boy will bring comfort to the brave mother and to his father, who has conferred so much honor on his country.

It is reported that the child will be named in memory of his grandfather, the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow.

California does things well, and successfully. The Olympiad is part of the past. Los Angeles did everything nobly and generously, and knows that it pays to do things well. With all bills paid, "surplus receipts will be devoted to retiring State bonds, issued to guarantee success for the games. California taxpayers will thus save about one million dollars.

SAVING anything for taxpayers is quite unusual.

A strange story from Paris warns all elderly men of 62 and over to select temperamental female friends cautiously, if at all.

Police found Prince Edgar De Bourbon, with his throat cut, dead. He was 62. The lady, Candelaria Brausoler, Spanish, was surprised, and told the police. "The quarrel was trivial, I killed him in a blind rage, and slashed him only twice."

When a Spanish lady, in a rage, slashes twice, that is enough. This incident proves again that "the Bourbons never learn anything."

Lieut. Baron Takeichi Nishi, who won the Olympic Prix des Nations with his marvelous jumping horse Uranus, taking the 19 difficult and dangerous jumps in perfect, unhesitating form, is pleased, as are his associates from Japan, with their experience in Los Angeles.

They were sincerely applauded, none more heartily, on their numerous winnings. And when a Japanese finished doggedly the grinding race of 5000 meters, although hopelessly last, the applause was greater than for any winner. To keep on in the face of sure defeat is real greatness.

Those that think of Japanese horsemanship as something associated with tiny, long-maned ponies, should have seen Uranus fly the high jumps. Others that think good horses and noble Nordics necessarily go together, will be surprised to learn that Uranus was bred in Italy.

Baron Nishi, one of the richest men in Japan, bought him to win, trained him in Tokyo, did win, and thanks California with a "ban-banzai."

One plain "banzai" means wishing you ten thousand years of happiness. A "ban-banzai" means one thousand banzais.

This Olympiad has proved to Japan, if proof were necessary, that this nation has only admiration for Japan's courage and ability, and friendship for the Japanese.

Interesting things in this part of the world, on the Pacific's edge, where distances are counted in thousands of miles and land in tens of thousands of acres.

On the Summers' ranch, near here, are rocks, acres of them that constantly give out fierce heat. You could not hold one of the rocks in your bare hands. The State government has built a fire land around the heat zone, to protect neighboring forests and ranches.

No one knows what causes the intense, permanent heat. It is not a new volcano working its way to the surface, but probably some queer chemical action that science could explain.

Marcus L. Waltz, able publisher of The Cambrian, of Cambria, Cal., can tell you all about the rocks. His newspaper tells you, also, that California babies are robust. Read this: "A collision between two cars, south of the bridge on Lee st., threw the baby of Mrs. George Cuthbert through the windshield. The baby received several cuts, but apparently no serious injury. Dr. Lowell did the repair work on the child."

An effete Eastern baby would have been beyond the help of any repair work."

Hitler, chief of Germany's Nazis, modestly demands of Von Hindenburg and all Germany, "power in Germany equal to that of Mussolini in Italy.

Old-fashioned Germans will remind Hitler that power such as Mussolini possesses must be earned, won. It is never handed out on a silver platter, ready to wear.

Bismarck had great power in Germany, and created the empire. But he attained his position by working for it.

Walker Case Fugitive Aided by Seabury Man

BULLETIN

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP)—Irked by John J. Curtin, counsel to Myor Wiker, Gov. Roosevelt at today's session of the Walker ouster hearing declared he was "getting a little bit fed up" with arguments and threatened to "take charge" and speed up proceedings. Today was the fifth the hearing has been in progress.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 17—A former assistant to Samuel Seabury, testifying at today's session of the Walker ouster hearing, said Charles Kerrigan, aid to Mayor Walker, told him "I know the mayor did not expect you to find Sherwood."

Russell T. Sherwood, missing accountant, handled $1,000,000 for Walker, it is charged by Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter committee.

Walker's aid in finding Sherwood was never sought, it was brought out.

The one-time aid to Seabury, called as a witness by Gov. Roosevelt, conducting the hearing, was Jacob Gould Schurman, Jr. Schurman conducted the committee's investigation of Walker's financial affairs.

His conversation with Kerrigan, he explained, took place a few days before a subpoena was issued for Sherwood. Walker was in Europe then (August, 1931).

HELD UP SUBPOENA

On cross-examination, John J. Curtin, chief legal adviser to Walker, introduced a record of the New York city police department to show Schurman advised the department to hold up serving the subpoena on Sherwood, who had been found in Atlantic City.

A process server had found Sherwood in the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, in September.

One of the reasons advanced for Walker's removal is that he failed to aid in finding Sherwood. Curtin's

TESTIFIES FOR LAWYER

Judge Samuel R. Cutler of Chelsea, Mayor Casassa and City Solicitor Murray of Revere today testified in Supreme Court to the "honesty and integrity" of a suspected Revere attorney, who faces disbarment for alleged fraud, forgery and larceny.

The attorney, Meyer W. Kettleman, asked through counsel that he be allowed to resign from the bar, but Judge Fred T. Field took the matter under advisement.

Today's hearing was on a report of Commissioner Dunbar F. Carpenter, appointed to investigate fraud in automobile insurance claims. It charged that Kettleman forged endorsements of Eli Levine of Revere and converted $52.50 of an insurance claim to his own use.

He was recently suspended for three years for claiming injury for a woman who was not in an automobile that had been in collision.

"I'm going to await orders at home," the vice presidential candidate said when questioned about what speaking engagements were slated for him.

He will speakk in New Hampshire in September, but the date and place have not been made public.

LITIGANTS IN GILLETTE CASE AGREE

Long-Drawn-Out $21,000,000 Action Settled for Cash and Concessions

A cash settlement of $400,000 and more than a score of other concessions ended the long drawn out suit of minority stockholders for $21,000,000 against certain directors of the Gillette Safety Razor Co. today.

After two months of conferences, that followed 40 court days and a year's litigation previous to that, Justice [illegible] signed the interlocutory decree in Superior Court.

The stockholders had charged the directors, many of the latter prominent Boston bankers, with mismanagement of the company from 1926 to 1930 and of impairing the capital stock of the company.

MUST DELIVER NOTES

They named as defendants, Philip Stockton, president of the First National Bank of Boston; John E. Aldred, New York banker, Maurice J. Curran of Andover, Henry J. Fuller, New York banker, John Gaston, son of the late col. William A. Gaston, Channing M. Wells, of Southbridge, head of the American Optical Co., Bradley W. Palmer, Boston attorney; Frank J. Fahey and Thomas W. Pelham, both of Brookline and Ralph E. Thompson of Boston.

Two of the defendants, not named in that part of the decree made public, must also deliver to the company promissory notes for $62,500 each, payable in two years, but bearing no interest.

The division of the cash settlement, to show the amount each defendant must pay, was also omitted.

Fahey, according to the agreement, will waive all claims to $53,318 he returned to the company during the litigation, and Thompson agreed to assign certain patent rights to the company, which are now held in trust by a third party.

The question of counsel fees, court expenses and other items, ranging well into six figures, were left for disposition by Judge William M. Prest, who presided as master over the hearings and was to have filed a report within a week.

AGREE ON HALL

They will become an added part of the settlement, according to the agreement.

The 13 attorneys agreed upon Atty. Hall to handle the settlement, notes and waivers and make distribution to the parties concerned.

A statement of attorneys for the stockholders, contained in the agreement, stated the agreement was decided upon because of "the uncertainty, expense and delay of further litigation that would not be for the best interest of the corporation."

U. S. IN PROBE OF BAKE SHOP RACKETEERS

Chicago Methods Introduced in Preying Upon Greater Boston Bread Makers

Chicago business racketeering methods have been introduced on a large scale in Boston by local gangsters and are under investigation by police and federal agents, the Boston Evening American learned today.

Italian bakers have been forced by strong arm methods to join an organization which, it is [illegible], by the racketeers for the supposed purpose of protecting them against a reduction in bread prices, but for the actual purpose of extortion.

Thirty bakers in the North and West Ends have already been "strongarmed" into joining and the gang's leaders were working today in East Boston, Revere and Chelsea, the police learned.

BUCCOLO QUESTIONED

In connection with the police investigation, Phil Buccolo, North End sporting man, was questioned in a Canal st. office by Lieut. James O'Neil, acting captain, and Special Officer Mason Chalmers, of Hanover st. station.

Buccolo is one of those recently found not guilty of conspiracy charges growing out of the Hotel Manger "lottery" arrests.

He said he was not interested in promotion of the organization under investigation but that he is president of a master bakers' association, interested in a bakery establishment in the North End. His organization is an old one now being reorganized, he said.

He said he would take the charter and other papers to the police station later.

Federal authorities entered the probe because of notices sent by mail to bakers in Greater Boston notifying them to appear next Sunday at a meeting in a Washington st. hall for the purpose of organization.

EVERETT MAN WARNED

The organization is being formed in the nature of a union and already has held one meeting.

Bakers who didn't attend have been visited by the racketeers and told they must join and pay a fee for membership and a certain amount each month.

For two hours yesterday, an Everett baker, whose brother-in-law runs an East Boston bakery, was questioned by the Federal investigators regarding the new "union rules."

Any member of the union who sells bread at less than six cents a pound will be in trouble, he told them, and anybody who doesn't join the union and sells bread at any price in the area selected by the racketeers as their own won't sell it very long, he said he was warned.

BUSINESS THREATENED

Bakers have been told that they will be driven out of business if they don't join, police said. They learned that a representative of the organization approached a Revere baker yesterday, put up his proposition and was ordered from the shop. He returned in a few minutes with three other men, a conference was held and the baker joined.

Police are listing the addresses of all places exhibiting the membership card. Several bakers questioned, refused to discuss the matter but said they had made no payments yet. One admitted he had been told that if he didn't join his wagons would be off the streets next week.

There are about 104 Italian bake shops and manufactories in the Greater Boston districts.

Daylight Bandit Lived by Night in W. Roxbury Cave

A real cave man, who lived in a West Roxbury cave by night and roamed the city as an armed bandit by day, was Edward O'Rourke, 24, until his capture yesterday on the Franklin Park golf links following a Dorchester store holdup.

In an alleged confession today, O'Rourke, whose real home is in South st., Jamaica Plain, admitted holding up a store in Blue Hill ave., Dorchester, yesterday, and a chain store in Harrison ave., South End, on July 20.

Then he astonished police, they said, by telling them that for months he has lived in a deep cave on the Souther estate off Allendale rd., West Roxbury—and no one has been the wiser.

The cave, he said, is sheathed on the roof with thick sheetiron, is waterproof and on cool nights is snug and comfortable.

Only by night has O'Rourke occupied the cave, using it solely for sleeping purposes. Every morning he has bundled up his change of clothing, his extra shoes and his toilet articles, wrapped them tightly in a slicker and hidden them in the woods.

He did this, he said, because he noticed that children played around on the estate and sometimes entered the cave, and he feared they would tell their parents if they found his belongings in the cave.

A. T. & T. PAYS; STOCKS OFF

New York Aug. 17 (AP)—The stock market rebounded rather sharply in the last hour today, after sweeping decline in the early afternoon, which had carried many issues off 2 to nearly 8 points. Case regained about half of its loss of nearly 8.

Likewise, losses of about 5 to 7 in American Telephone, Union Pacific and Auburn were cut in half.

Allied Chemical rebounded smartly after declining 4. U. S. Steel partially recovered a 3-point loss. The late tone was heavy. The turnover exceeded 3,000,000 shares.

Immediately after the American Telephone & Telegraph Company announced the declration of its regular quarterly dividend of $2.25, stocks which around noon had been selling $1 to $3 a share below their previous closing prices, staged a fairly vigorous rally. This rally had erased about half of the losses, when fairly heavy selling orders reached the market and again tipped the scale downward.

IDLE IN RUSH TO BOSTON FOR 'EASY PICKINGS'

Chicago Autoist and Vermont Newlyweds Get City Aid; Scores of Frauds Bared

Further amazing revelations of city aid frauds, including the case of a Chicago single man who admitted coming to Boston with his automobile to get "easy welfare pickings," were made today as City Councillor David M. Brackman of Roxbury demanded an investigation of visitors employed in the welfare department.

Another case uncovered by police today was that of a newly-wed couple from Vermont who came here on behest of friends after their honeymoon, to live on the city because there was no dole where they lived.

MANY FRAUDS BARED

Other outstanding developments today in the probe of welfare racketeering, which was originally revealed by the Boston Evening American, were:

BOSTON—Hundreds of letters, anonymous and otherwise, received at police headquarters "tipping" the authorities to fraudulent cases. Numerous cases of home-owners, receiving aid, revealed. Councillor Brackman voices suspicion of collusion.

CHELSEA — Welfare board drops 11 from aid list, cuts doles of others. Arranges to put 20 unemployed a day on ash removal, saving $24,000 a year on the ash removal contract.

EVERETT — Situation still unsettled, with unemployed men and widows declaring they cannot live on amounts alloted.

QUINCY — Probe of 500 welfare cases started to purge the list of "fakers."

SOMERVILLE — Aldermen transfer $89,000 from other department funds to provide money for aiding the needy.

MALDEN—Old rate of allowances restored, after protest, and investigation for frauds renewed.

WATERTOWN—Court trials reveal one man received $577 aid while having an $800 bank account and owning seven houselots. Another has worked steadily for 70 weeks, but took aid from the town.

The Chicago man who drove here to get himself on the welfare list for $10 a week admitted to Boston police investigators, it was learned, that local friends had informed him it was easy to collect public aid here. He said he thought it better than stay-

DEMANDS BONUS ARMY TRIAL BEFORE ELECTION DAY

COUNSEL FOR 3 VETERANS TO OPEN FIGHT

Declares Men Held for Washington Riots Are Being Made 'Goats' by Federal Officials

Washington, Aug. 17 (INS)—Trial before the national election of three veterans indicted here for assaults on policemen during the "bonus riot" of July 28 was demanded by Jesse C. Duke, counsel for the veterans.

Although Dist. Atty. Leo A. Rover said the veterans would be tried at the October term of District Supreme Court, Duke predicted that federal officials would make an effort to delay the trial until after the election in November.

Duke, who was retained by the American Civil Liberties Union to defend the three members of the ill-fated bonus expeditionary force, declared he would fight the charges "all the way."

The veterans—Bernard McCoy, John O. Olson and Broadus Faulkner—all face the possibility of heavy prison sentences if they are convicted. The maximum penalty on one count against McCoy, assault on a policeman with intent to kill, is 15 years, while the maximum penalty on the remainder of the counts against all is 10 years.

"GOATS," SAYS DUKE.

Witnesses who testified before the grand jury were largely members of the police force. Duke plans to call many of the bonus veterans, including Commander Walter W. Waters, in defense of the trio.

"We feel these men are picked as the goats," said Duke. "They have been held in jail without preliminary hearing and denied every constitutional right. I filed an affidavit of prejudice against Police Judge Given, and a ruling was delayed until the indictments could be returned.

"The veterans had good records during the World War. They did not participate in the fighting between police and veterans in which two veterans were fatally shot. They were arrested before noon on the day the veterans were evicted from their camps by police and soldiers.

Duke said Olson served with the 1st Division in France and later was with Pershing's own regiment, a composite organization. McCoy, he said, was in the navy and was orderly for Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval air service. Faulkner also was overseas, Duke said.

AIR THE CHARGES

District Attorney Rover said the indictment of the trio ended the grand jury investigation.

During the grand jury's inquiry no Secret Service or Department of Justice agents testified, it was disclosed, although they had made investigations.

The trial is expected to furnish a proving ground for the charges and counter-charges which have been made by administration officials.

Since the grand jury was barred from attempting to fix responsibility for the clashes here, because of a ruling of Supreme Court Justice Proctor, the trial may offer an opportunity for both government and the veterans' leaders to have their say.

The three veterans are now in jail under bonds of $3000 each. Duke said he was hopeful someone would provide bonds so the veterans will not have to languish in jail until trial.

Mexicans Attack Italians Mistaken for U. S. Bonus Men

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 17 (AP)—A group of Italian athletes, returning from the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, were pelted with rocks in Juarez, Mex., by Mexicans who mistook them for "bonus marchers."

Much publicity has been given plans of the B. E. F. to colonize in Mexico.

Singing the native songs of their country, the Italian athletes were taken from El Paso to Juarez for a sightseeing trip.

Sighting the blue shirts of the visitors, a group of loiterers in the plaza hurled some stones, but only a few.

B. E. F. "Dynamite" Only Empty Boxes, Says Leader

Cleveland, Aug. 17 (AP)—A possible explanation of reports that the Bonus Expeditionary Force had dynamite on hand while encamped in Washington, was offered today by L. J. Holub, commander of the Veterans Service Association.

"A quantity of empty dynamite boxes were brought into camp for kindling wood," Holub explained. "That started the dynamite rumor, and the police who ran it down found out the truth."

Missing Banker Found in Hotel

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP)—William A. Draves, Dunkirk bank director, missing from his home since Monday, was found early today in a hotel room here.

Police said Draves told them he had been "suffering from a case of nerves" and had "determined to get away for a few days' rest without saying anything to anyone." His car was found in the hotel garage. He had been reported kidnaped.

JAS. E. GAFFNEY PASSES AWAY

James E. Gaffney, owner of the Boston Braves baseball club 18 years ago, died today at his summer home, East Hampton, N. Y.

James E. Gaffney

Gaffney was stricken with a paralytic shock Sunday night. He was 70 years of age.

Gaffney moved to New York soon after he sold the Braves in 1914. He was a brother-in-law of the late Charles F. Murphy, one-time boss of Tammany Hall.

Starting his career as a New York policeman, he soon became interested in New York politics and resigned his police post to run for alderman. He was elected and served several terms.

Several times in the career that saw his rise to a reputed millionaire, Gaffney was the subject of many probes and investigations regarding Tammany Hall and New York politics. He always emerged with flying colors.

He purchased the Braves at the time the late Joseph Lannen owned the Boston Red Sox. The two became close friends and were declared by sports writers and others as "Boston's real baseball fans."

Gaffney built Braves Field and was owner of the club when the Tribe won the world championship in four straight games from the Athletics in 1914.

Huey Long Glad He Doesn't Wear Just a Nightshirt

New Orleans, La., Aug. 17 (AP)—Senator Huey P. Long, the unblushing "Kingfish" of Louisiana politics who confesses a passion for green pajamas was grinning immodestly today about the way he had displayed his night attire to the public.

The senator living alone during the absence of his family, ventured out on the porch, pajama clad, to pick up a newspaper at 5 o'clock in the morning. The door slammed shut behind him and the lock clicked into place.

So for two hours he shiveringly perused the newspaper in his garden until a cook arrived and let him back in the house.

"It would have been worse if I had had on a nightshirt," the senator laughed.

FATHER OF FOUR KILLED ON R. R.

Until a few months ago, Edward F. Collins, 54, father of four, was a regular commuter on the 7:15 train from Danvers to Danversport.

He was killed today by that train as he walked the several miles to save the fare for household expenses.

Collins, a leather worker, was within sight of the factory where he recently took a cut in wages. He stumbled on the track and was unable to recover before the train bore down on him.

Horace Jenkins, engineer, and Timothy Hawkes, fireman, said they were powerless to stop the train after they saw Collins stumble 100 feet ahead.

DEPORTEES RIOT ON SHIP; 6 HURT

Providence, Aug. 17—Because a pickpocket objected to association with a murderer, a riot between 52 deportees broke out today on the Fabre Line steamer Sinaia as it neared port to take on 20 more for deportation.

Six were injured but none escaped from the brig in the hold.

The prisoners, all bound for Mediterranean ports, had just finished breakfast when the pickpocket berated one of four men recently released from Sing Sing on lesser murder charges.

Sympathizers of both entered into the argument, officials said, wielding knives forks, cups and other utensils used at breakfast.

Anthony Vachris, retired lieutenant of the New York police, now head of the Fabre Line detective force, led a squad of six men into the brig and subdued the rioters.

Vachris reported that his men were armed with blackjacks that served to subdue the deportees.

The injured men were treated for cuts and bruises, but kept in the brig with warnings that further rioting would mean more injuries.

In spite of the fracas, 20 more deportees were placed aboard the ship and she sailed for Europe, with the Azores the first stop.

Unknown Victim Is Doctor's Own Son

Lidgewood, N. D., Aug. 17 (AP)—Someone called Dr. E. G. Sasse at his office yesterday.

"An unidentified boy," he was told, had been found dying from a bullet wound.

Dr. Sasse hurried to the scene. There he found his 9-year-old son, Wallace, fatally wounded.

COX, DAVIS FALL IN LINE; 'AL' STILL SILENT

Democrats Announce a List of Speakers Who Will Take the Stump in the Campaign

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—Expectation that James M. Cox will take the stump for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket if his health permits was expressed today in Democratic headquarters.

Robert Jackson, chairman of the speakers bureau, who described the former Governor of Ohio as "100 per cent in line," also said John W Davis was favorably inclined toward making speeches for the ticket.

Meanwhile the question whether a third former Democratic candidate for the presidency, Al Smith, would take the stump remained a mystery.

Speaker Garner went back to Washington last night after a round of conferences here and in Albany which culminated in a visit yesterday to Smith in his skyscraper office.

The conference lasted an hour and Garner came out smiling.

WANTS SMITH TO HELP

"I went to see Mr. Smith because he is a great American and one of the outstanding citizens of New York," he said. "I don't see how any leading Democrat could come to New York without calling on him—and I guess it's all right to call myself a leading Democrat."

"Did you talk about the campaign?" Garner was asked.

"Well, we did. I expressed the hope he would help us along. In support of the Democratic ticket I think he would be worth as much as any one man—maybe more—yes, I'll make it the superlative—he'd be worth more than any one man.

"I'd love to have him supporting the ticket."

Later he was asked if he had hopes Mr Smith would support the ticket actively and he replied in the affirmative.

"But let him speak for himself," he said.

When Smith emerged, he said:

AL WON'T TELL.

"About everything that took place with Mr. Garner, I have not a single word to say—not a single word."

"But will you speak for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket?" he was asked.

"That's the same question put in another way," he replied.

Shortly after the convention Smith gave out a statement saying he would support the party. Asked specifically if he would support Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner, he said supporting the party meant supporting the nominees.

Jackson said speakers who will begin an intensive campaign after Labor Day include Governor Ely of Massachusetts, Governor Ritchie of Maryland, former Governor Byrd of Virginia, Governor Moore of New Jersey, and United States Senators Walsh of Massachusetts, Wagner and Copeland of New York, Walsh and Wheeler of Montana, Costigan of Colorado and Lewis of Illinois.

Farley, Raskob Arrange to Meet Party's Debts

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—James A. Farley Democratic national chairman, emerged from a conference with former Chairman John J. Raskob today announcing satisfactory arrangements had been made to liquidate the party's debts.

Others at the conference were Robert Jackson and Frank C. Walker, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the national committee.

"Many stories have appeared in the press from sources entirely unknown to us, which would indicate the Democratic national committee is attempting to avoid or repudiate its honest debts," Farley said.

"Such, of course, is not and could not be the case, as these are legal obligations incurred in building the party into the pre-eminent and strong position it occupies today.

FRANCE SEEKS UNITED FRONT AGAINST U. S.

Britain Declines to Join the Scheme for 3-Year Moratorium on the Debts

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, Aug. 17 (INS)—France is urging European debtor nations to join in a common front against the United States on war debts, International News Service learned on semi-official authority today.

The French government seeks to have the European debtors decline to resume payments due Dec. 15 at the expiration of the Hoover moratorium.

Meanwhile, France will approach Washington privately with the unanimous suggestion, if possible, that their debt agreements be modified.

FOR 3-YEAR MORATORIUM.

France will seek to have the agreements with the other nations changed to conform with that made with France, namely that a three-year moratorium on principal and interest be granted on request. At present they are permitted to ask only a two-year moratorium, and that on the principal only.

Great Britain, although she has indicated she will reopen debt negotiations with Washington, will not join any united front such as that proposed by France.

The British government has not taken favorably to the French suggestion because of its desire to take independent action on the question and also because of the conviction that to join such a united front would react adversely on American opinion and possibly preclude the chances of permanent debt revision.

BRITISH ATTITUDE

Britain does expect ultimate revision, however. Regarding a Washington statement that the United States expected payment in full, a government spokesman made the following statement:

"This doesn't impress us very much. So far as this country is concerned, we have no intention of presenting a united front toward America on debts or any other matter.

"Our policy has been stated and restated by the prime minister, and in the event he decides to request the United States to reopen consideration of debts, as he has indicated he intends doing, it will be as a representative of Britain and no one else."

Whereas the American government has a separate agreement with each debtor, by which on September 15 they may seek certain modifications of their individual obligations, France wants all dealt with alike, thus moulding a strong European bloc which it is agreed would place the United States at a distinct disadvantage.

NEAR-BREWERY PLEA FAILS 3

Fumes from a near-beer brewery were blamed today in federal court by three Charlestown men for suspicions that led dry agents to raid a house in Carter st., Charlestown.

Their claim that the fumes seeped into the house but they had no beer or liquor on the premises availed them little as U. S. Commissioner Jenney held each in $500 for federal court.

Federal agents said they found Salvatore Turriddo, Andrew Rizzono, both of Somerville, and Filippo Trapone of Carter st. in the house. All were charged with possession of alcohol and beer.

A legalized near-beer brewery operates nearby.

CIGARETTE FAILS TO FREE DRIVER

Defying courtroom ettiquette, Atty. Benjamin Thornberg lighted a cigarette in Newton District court today to illustrate a case he was trying.

Approaching Sergt. Patrick King, who was prosecuting the case against J. Lester Carter, 48, of Everett st., Waban, charged with drunken driving, the lawyer asked:

"Assuming this smoke indicates the odor of alcohol with which your clothing was impregnated, isn't it true that in talking to me your breath comes in my face so I would naturally think the odor was from your breath?"

King refused to agree that the odor he thought was from Carter's breath might have been from his own clothing as a result of arresting a drunken woman just before he took Carter into custody. Carter was found guilty, given a month and appealed.

choose, without concealment. One student clubhouse will be smoking headquarters, but there will be no restriction anywhere. A wise decision.

If you think smoking harmless for women, and the next generation which they must create, by all means let them smoke. If you think nicotine, absorbed by young women, injures them and handicaps their babies, do not compel them to conceal their smoking. Prohibition has taught us that concealment is an added attraction. It has also taught many young women to drink cocktails and other alcoholic poisons. On the whole, it would be a good thing if drinking women would reach for a cigarette, instead of a cocktail.

MORE GAS TO KEEP ALOFT 'FLYING BOUDOIR'

SOMERVILLE MAN, WHO ASKED NO AID, GETS CHECK

'HELP OR WE DIE,' HIS PLEA

A father and his two sons leaving police headquarters today after the man made a fervent plea for an increase in his dole allowance. He, his wife and three children must live on $10 a week. He suffered a stroke and cannot work. He threatened to "turn on the gas" and kill his family and himself if they are not aided. The overalls are all the clothing the boys have. (Staff photo.)

Cripple Threatens to Kill 5 if Dole Is Not Increased

Pleading that if he cannot get more welfare aid for his family he will "turn on the gas and kill myself," my wife my children—every body," a welfare recipient sought assistance today of the new police bureau of aid at headquarters.

He gets $10 a week, he said, although up to June he got $16 a week. He has three children, one of them ill at home with an invalid mother. Four years ago he himself suffered a shock and is unable to work he claimed. And for his family of five he has but $2.27 a week for food, clothing and medicine he declared.

Capt. Stephen J. Flaherty, who took down the man's story as two of his three children, clad in tattered overalls, stood by, open-eyed in the big "police house," promised to investigate the case and see what could be done.

PROTEST IN VAIN

The man said he had been receiving aid since 1930. He struggled along unaided after his stroke in 1928, but in 1929 he lost a house he owned, and in 1930 was compelled to seek aid. After the cut to $10 he protested, but got nothing, he claims.

"My visitor hasn't been to see me since 1930," he said. "I had to send for him and show him how much in need I am after they cut me down to $10. Since 1930 they didn't know if I was poor or a millionaire.

"We have only one meal a day now. Today I went out and dug dandelions. I can't afford to buy cabbage. There is only eight cents left in the house.

"If I can't get enough money to get along on, I will turn on the gas and kill myself, my wife, my children—everybody. I haven't got enough money to buy a gun.

"The children go back to school in three weeks, but they can't go back from my house. All they have are the overalls you see on them. I can't send them to school in those."

The father listed out his budget on the $10 per week as follows: Insurance for the entire family, $1.25, rent $4.50, milk 98 cents, gas 50 cents, electricity 50 cents, or a total of $7.73 and a balance of $2.27 for food, clothing, medicine and incidentals.

DID BANKER GET SPLIT? ASKED BUSHNELL

Lovering Admits He Doubts if Huge Sum Went for the Fixtures of Theater

That a huge sum of money lent by the Medford Trust Co. to a contractor is unaccounted for in his expenditures and that Edwin T. McKnight, the bank president, may have "got a slice of it for his own pocket," was the intimation given today by Robert T. Bushnell, counsel for Bank Commissioner Guy.

It was made shortly after resumption of Master Charles N. Blood's hearing on the commissioner's bill seeking to hold McKnight, his wife and 22 directors of the bank individually responsible for the losses sustained by depositors when the institution closed last October.

$140,000 FOR FIXTURES?

Lewis H. Lovering, a director of the bank, was under questioning regarding loans made by the bank to Frank Tragia, Leominster contractor, who went bankrupt after borrowing more than $400,000. A theater built by Tragia was the subject of inquiry.

"If the bank advanced $127,000 in 1929, after the building was completed, with $15,000 to spare on another loan, what became of the balance?" Bushnell asked.

"I don't know; I suppose it went for fixtures," replied Lovering.

"You have no idea, by any stretch of the imagination, that the fixtures cost $140,000, have you?" Bushnell demanded.

DEFENDS McKNIGHT

"I have no idea they cost half that amount," said the director.

Q.—Have you any idea that McKnight got a slice of this money and put it in his own pocket? A.—No, sir, certainly not!

Q.—If there is a missing $140,000, do you know what became of it? A.—I certainly do not.

Lovering admitted he knew the bank stood to lose some money on loans to David S. Seigel of Newton and corporations in which he was interested, at a time when a loan was made to the Riverway Realty Co., with which he was associated.

SUSPICIOUS OF SEIGEL

He was questioned at length regarding supplementary loans made by the bank after original loans for construction and said these were made so the bank wouldn't be left with unfinished buildings on its hands.

Regarding a $75,000 loan to Seigel and his wife, Lovering was asked whether, at the time of the loan, he wasn't suspicious of Seigel.

"I thought he would bear watching," he said. "I thought it was time to look out a little for him. I considered him to be quite a plunger."

2 WOMEN ROUT ARMED BANDITS

Two burglars, both armed and wearing masks, ran into a very thin time today in Suite 1 at 59 Charles st., Dorchester, being put to rout by a mother and daughter and the numbers of their escape car being caught and given to police.

The holdup pair, each about 20 years old, entered the suite with false keys and found Mrs. Toby Piemarch asleep on a divan in the front room.

They shook her into horrified wakefulness and ordered her, at the points of their revolvers, to remain quiet.

Just then her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Josephson, another occupant of the suite, walked into the room saw the tableaux and began to scream for help. Encouraged by her daughter's voice and the shock given the intruders, Mrs. Biemarch also started to scream.

Then suddenly panicy burglars leaped excitedly for a door, found it to be not the exit, wheeled, found the right door and stampeded out to the street in confusion, tearing off their masks as they fled.

They leaped into a car which was standing at the curb with a third man at the wheel. Mrs. Josephson caught the car's registration number and gave it to police.

Several months ago, Mrs. Josephson, wife of Abraham Josephson, manufacturing jeweler, had a more serious encounter with a burglar that entered her home at night through a window.

The masked burglar attempted to tear from her neck a bag in which she carried several thousand dollars worth of jewels, but screams of her 9-year-old son, Aaron, frightened the burglar away.

In deference to the wishes of Col. Lindbergh, who said in a statement last night he desired as little public attention as possibla centered on the baby, the family was left in seclusion. No crowds assembled at the gate of the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, where the child was born.

Friends seemed agreed that the baby probably would be named after his famous grandfather, the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow. No statement was forthcoming, but the health of mother and child was believed to be good.

There was no official confirmation of a report that the Linobergh's planned to move soon to the mansion on Sourland Mountain from where their first child, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnaped and slain.

MRS. M'CORMICK OUT OF DANGER

Chicago, Aug. 17 (INS)—Immediate danger has passed and distinct improvement has been noted in the condition of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, it was reported today.

Mrs. Oser, her husband Max, and their two small children were to leave New York today where they arrived from Switzerland yesterday aboard the liner Majestic.

They spent the night on the Tarreytown estate of Mrs. Oser's grandfather, John D. Rockefeller.

A radiogram reporting improvement in her mother's condition caused Mrs. Oser to abandon her plan of flying from New York to Chicago.

FLIVVER BLAZE HALTS TRAFFIC

A faulty exhaust in an ancient flivver was the cause of a large-sized disturbance in Summer st. today that packed the lunch-time crowds along the curbstones.

The old car, owned by Harry Ciampoli of King pl., Cambridge, was driven by William A. Doyle of Fayette st., Cambridge, when an exhaust explosion caused it to catch fire.

Doyle pulled over at the corner of Arch st., and an alarm was turned in. Eight pieces of fire apparatus roared up, trailed by a police ambulance, and the street was completely tied up for a few minutes.

The blaze was quickly extinguished.

Seek Gray-Haired Stranger in Auto Who Called for It at Recipient's Home

Somerville police revealed today that "Frank Carterino of Boston st." brought them a check for $84 received by him from the welfare department for a month's aid, explaining he had not applied for aid and wanted none, as he has a job.

He is the only Frank Carterino in the Somerville directory. Members of his family said that after he left the house with the check, a gray-haired man in an expensive automobile called and asked for it.

At the welfare department, William Fitzgerald, a temporary employe and cousin of Mayor John J. Murphy, said to a reporter for the Boston Evening American:

"What are you trying to do, make a little story to show up the inefficiency of this department?"

"No," said the reporter. "We are interested in the facts in this case. I have some information and desire to get it all."

"Well," said Fitzgerald, "you can print what you want, you'll get no information here."

Fitzgerald, who will soon take the examination for department investigator, was in charge in the absence of the department head, who is on vacation.

FORT TO TOUR NEW ENGLAND ON LOAN BANKS

Washington, Aug. 17 (AP)—Three members of the Home Loan Bank board are going into different sections of the country this week to sound out sentiment of financial institutions towards subscribing for stock in the projected Home Loan Banks.

The board is waiting about setting up the eight to 12 banks and carving out as many districts until it determines whether the institutions holding home mortgages are willing to subscribe for the intial capital stock.

Chairman Franklin W. Fort said today he would go to his home state of New Jersey, into New York state and into New England to spend three days conferring with leaders as to whether the capital stock can be subscribed.

W. E. Best is going into Pennsylvania and possibly Ohio, while H. Martin Bodfish will confer with Illinois, Indiana and northwestern state group leaders at Chicago.

Fort explained that the board was trying to sound out sentiment as to whether "financial groups are going along with us or whether they are going to stay out."

NEW JUDGE SWORN IN

Lewis Goldberg, Brookline attorney, was sworn in today as superior court judge by Governor Ely. Members of his family attended the ceremony. Judge Goldberg succeeds to the place formerly held by Judge Henry T. Lummus, who was recently elevated to the supreme bench. Photo shows Goldberg taking the oath.

ATTY. GOLDBERG SWORN IN AS JUDGE

Atty. Lewis Goldberg of Brookline became Judge Lewis Goldberg of superior court today, the Governor's Council unanimously confirming his nomination by Gov. Ely two weeks ago.

The new superior court judge, former member of the Public Utilities Commission, was sworn in immediately after being confirmed by the council.

He will take the seat vacated by Justice Henry T. Lummus, who was recently elevated to the supreme court bench.

Judge Goldberg has been prominent in the public service since his graduation from Harvard in 1913. He is a former assistant United States district attorney and a former assistant attorney-general.

Members of Judge Goldberg's family and many friends witnessed his taking the oath of office.

His commission will be read next Monday at 10 a. m. in equity motions session of Superior Court by Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall.

The Governor's Council also confirmed the appointment of George P. Beckford of Boston as chairman of the State ballot law commission.

VISITORS AND WORKING ALIENS GIVEN DOLE BY CITY

ing around Chicago looking for a job.

His admissions, and those of others questioned by police, are understood to have resulted in the immediate dropping of their names from the lists, thereby saving the city money without further investigation.

The newlywed couple from Vermont were also collecting $10 a week and told the same story of being urged by friends to come here.

One man was found who has lived here 42 years without taking out citizenship papers. He said he could not read or write. He had $800 in the bank, however, and had put his son through the New England Conservatory of Music.

LANDLORD GETS DOLE

The father was getting $12 a week city aid. He admitted his son had never tried to get work, but occasionally got a chance to play at dances. Father and son have been living on the public aid for 20 months.

Numerous other aliens were found to be receiving aid, police said, although this is not illegal unless other circumstances are against them.

An owner of a three-family house, receiving a total of $34 rent from his two tenants, while he lived in one of the suites himself, first appealed to the city for a baby carriage and upon receiving it put in a bid for a dole. He was granted $14 a week. He has five children.

Another man was found receiving $10 weekly on which he claimed to be supporting his son, the latter's wife and a grandchild. A police officer questioned the son who said they did not want city aid any more as he was going to New Hampshire to accept a good job.

CURLEY IN WARNING

A number of other families, it was learned, told the police investigators:

"We don't want any more aid. Take us off the list."

Warning was issued by Mayor Curley that all receiving doles illegally should take steps immediately to be taken off the public welfare roles, as they will otherwise be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Finding of radios and automobiles, owned by families receiving aid, has been a common occurance.

A Dorchester woman, living with one daughter and receiving $5 weekly from another daughter, is on the welfare board for $13 a week, despite the fact that she has no expense that the daughters do not take care of for her.

DOLE ADDS TO RICHES

A Mattapan home-owner, receiving $75 a month rent from a two-family house, is receiving city aid in addition. Another Mattapan man, owning a single house, sold it and bought a two-family dwelling. He gave it to his daughter and had himself put on the dole list.

Another case discovered in Mattapan is that of a father who receives $14 for himself and his family from the city, while a son was found to be receiving a $7 dole.

The hundreds of letters received at police headquarters, not only by the special division of public aid investigation and its commander, Deputy Supt. Thomas F. Goode, but also by Supt. Crowley and other high officials, gave further information on cases already revealed and cited numerous additional cases. All will be investigated.

GIVEN ASHES JOBS.

The Chelsea welfare board made arrangements with the ash removal contractor to use unemployed men from the welfare list to the number of 20 a day. The contractor will use only his own trucks and drivers and the city will hereafter pay him $18 a day, instead of a much larger sum, the saving being at the rate of $24,000 a year.

Three families had their doles cut and 11 persons, chiefly old men and women were dropped from the list. The latter will be cared for by their sons and daughters.

Aroused by disclosures of the police investigators, Councillor Brackman sent a communication to the Overseers of the Public Welfare in part as follows:

"It is my understanding that the police department, who are conducting this investigation, will in the near future make a partial official report of their investigation.

"In order to expedite this investigation, may I suggest to the board that at its next meeting it order a separate investigation, particularly in relation to the visitors who were either so overburdened with cases that they had not the time to even investigate the authenticity of an individual's address or who were in collusion with the recipients of said funds?

"I can conceive of cases where it would be possible for one individual to receive aid if in collusion with a visitor under 10 or 12 fictitious or false names."

WORTH $2400, DOLED

According to testimony in Waltham district court today, Thomas Corsi, 38, of Edenfield ave., Watertown, collected $577 from the town welfare department while the assesors' department was listing him for ownership of seven house lots, valued at $1600. In July he closed out an account for $797 in the Union Market National Bank. Corsi will present his defense tomorrow.

Charles Karabian, 50, of Putnam st., Watertown, pleaded guilty to larceny of $350. He is married, has three children and was boarding two other children for a relative for $6 a week. He has worked steadily for 70 weeks at $22 a week. Judge Connolly continued the case to Dec. 6 and Karabian will have a chance to make restitution meanwhile. The court made no promise of leniency.

Director of Public Welfare Daniel H. Murphy of Watertown, also had in court Frank Caponi, 45, of Hudson st. Caponi received $200 town aid from January to May, and Murphy said he also received insurance payments. Caponi told the court he is married and has 10 children. The case was continued to Aug. 24.

Salem and Peabody officials opened fire on the Boston welfare department today, both cities claiming Boston owes them for care of needy residents who have legal settlements in Boston.

A claim of $2600 by Mayor Bates of Salem was disputed immediately by Daniel Murphy, auditor of the Boston department. Murphy admitted Boston owed Salem $1305. He said $1526 was claimed by Salem but was not a just bill.

He said, in reply to a statement of James JP. Ray of the Peabody welfare board, that Boston owed Peabody nothing.

Muprphy added that Salem is soon to be billed for $3148.

JURY DEBATES FATE OF FLIER LANCASTER

Miami, Fla., Aug. 17 (AP)—The case of Capt. W. N. Lancaster on trial for the love triangle slaying of Haden Clarke was given to a circuit court jury of twelve men at 11:45 a. m. today, after Judge H. F. Atkinson had read his instructions to the jury.

Judge Atkinson told the jurors that to find Lancaster guilty as a result of circumstantial evidence they must find circumstances inconsistent with innocence.

State Atty. N. Vernon Hawthorne concluded his plea for conviction by asking the jurors to find Lancaster guilty of a "cold, calculated murder."

FERRARA AND 3 WIN PARDONS

Four pardons were approved today by the Governor's Council.

A full pardon was voted to Frank Ferrara, 28, of Cambridge, acquitted of forgery last Saturday in superior court by Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall after a second trial of his case. When Ferrara was found guilty in his first trial, an old probation was revoked and he was sent to State Prison to serve an old term of three to six years in addition to a similar new sentence.

The old sentence could not be revoked and it was necessary to seek executive clemency.

John Frongillo of Worcester, sentenced March 24, 1922, to 18 to 20 years, for manslaughter in the killing of Rocco De Lucca, received a pardon under parole conditions because he is ill with tuberculosis.

Jesse E. Medeiros of New Bedford, a native of the Azores, paroled last February 19, that he might be deported, was given a full pardon today because no action has been taken on deportation. He was sentenced in November, 1930, for breaking and entering.

A pardon under parole conditions was given Karol Cummings, former Boston merchant, sentenced September 25, 1930, to three to five years for attacking a girl in Dedham.

HALTED SHERWOOD HUNT

cross-examination aimed to develop that Mr. Walker's aid was not sought.

Mr. Roosevelt has subjected Walker to a severe examination into his reason for not throwing his influence behind the Sherwood search. The mayor said he personally directed the police to exert every effort to find Sherwood.

Schurman testified the committee did not turn to the City Hall for assistance when Sherwood was discovered at Atlantic City and later at Mexico City, where the subpoena was served. Sherwood ignored the subpoena and has not been found since.

TRACE GAS COUPONS

Sherwood's name, Schurman said, first appeared in connection with the mayor's account in the Federation Bank and Trust Company.

He said he ran across Sherwood's name in tracing coupons from Consolidated Gas bonds, which the mayor has said belonged to Mrs. Walker. Part of the coupons were deposited in the Walker account in the Federation Bank, he said, and part in an account of Sherwood in another bank.

Curtin asked Schurman if he and Kerrigan at lunch did not discuss an arrangement whereby nothing was done about Walker's affairs until he had returned from Europe.

Schurman said the arrangement was not mentioned.

"The talk was," he said, "That it was unfair to examine Sherwood while the mayor was away."

Q.—(By Curtin)—Didn't Kerrigan say it was unfair to examine the mayor's affairs while he was away. A.—No.

Q.—Didn't Kerrigan say the newspapers were publishing stories that accounts were being subpoenaed while you knew, as a matter of fact, the mayor had turned them over to you voluntarily? A.—No. Nothing like that was said.

Q.—Did you know, when Sherwood turned up in Mexico City, that Mayor Walker had returned to New York? A.—No, I think not.

Q.—Is it not true the mayor's return to New York preceded you learning Sherwood was in Mexico City? A.—I think you're right there.

Q.—When you went to court to get those papers you had no reason to believe Sherwood would run away, did you? A.—That's a hard question to answer.

Q.—Was there anything in the newspapers that would indicate Sherwood would run away? A.—Not that I remember.

Q.—So far as you know nobody asked Mayor Walker to communicate with Mr. Sherwood to return from Mexico City. Is that right? A.—So far as I know.

NEVER LISTED MISSING

Q.—Don't you recall that when Sherwood was in Atlantic City you asked the police to desist in their efforts to serve him with a subpoena? A.—I do know they couldn't serve a New York subpoena in New Jersey.

Q.—Was there ever any discussion by you or others that you wanted Sherwood listed as a missing witness? A.—No.

Curtin queried Schurman on Sherwood's presence in Chicago between his Atlantic City appearance and that at Mexico City. Schurman said he did not know of it until after Sherwood was reported to have left Chicago.

Snared on a Chair, Man Burns to Death

Cleveland, Aug. 17 (AP)—Caught fast to a chair by his own clothes, Frank Lazara, 45, died from suffocation early today while trying to escape from his home which was burning. Eight other persons left the building in safety. Firemen said Lazara, confused and dressing in darkness, became so entangled he was unable to extricate himself, and was unconscious when they found him.

FIND TREASURE SHIP WRECKAGE

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 17 (INS)—The wreckage of the sunken Ward liner Meridia in whose strong room lies $5,000,000 in gold, silver and jewels, has been located in 200 feet of water, 60 miles off the Virginia Capes, according to reports reaching here from the salvage ship Salvor.

The Salvor is the largest of three vessels which set out recently to attempt to raise the treasure. The Meridia sank more than 20 years ago following a collision with another liner.

G. O. P. IS READY FOR DRIVE HERE

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—Organization of the various bureaus of the eastern campaign headquarters of the Republican national committee virtually was completed today.

Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, eastern campaign manager, and Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, who is assisting him in the organization, indicated that all bureaus would be functioning at full speed by the end of the week.

W. H. Hill, assistant eastern chairman, had returned to his home in Binghampton, N. Y., after selecting an office, leaving word that he would return Monday to take up his work.

George Akerson, publicity chief and former secretary to President Hoover, announced that Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, would be one of the speakers who, like Senator Hebert, will campaign in Maine before that state's election on Sept. 12. He did not know the dates of their appearances.

Dorchester Youths Held for Breaks

COLLEGE GIRL ENDS HER LIFE

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 17 (INS)—An 18-year-old girl, who had told her landlord she was Ida Wilson, former college student and daughter of a former wealthy broker in Fairfield, left a note to her mother and committed suicide in a rooming house here today. Police sought her true identity.

Her body, clad only in a chemise, was found on a bed. On a table was a note addressed to "mother" asking forgiveness.

Thomas Brennan, the landlord, said the girl took the room two weeks ago, and had gone riding with an unidentified youth last night. Shortly after the suicide was discovered today, a man telephoned for the girl. He was asked to report at police headquarters, but did not appear.

Woman Wounded by Mine Guards

Federal Court Bars Unqualified Lawyers

Reinhart Withdraws in Favor of Spiegel

Atty. Arthur J. Reinhart, candidate for the Republican nomination to the House from Ward 14, today withdrew his candidacy in favor of Jacob Spiegel.

"I am convinced from my intimate knowledge of Mr. Spiegel and his high standing in the legal profession that he will ably represent our district," he said. "I strongly urge his nomination and election to the House of Representatives."

BOARDMAN IS MUCH BETTER

Springfield, Aug. 17 (AP)—Entirely satisfactory progress toward recovery was being made today by Russell N. Boardman, of Boston, transatlantic flier, who crashed yesterday near Springfield airport just after he had taken off in a practice flight. There is no skull fracture and a kidney injury is mending. No bone fractures have appeared.

Whether Boardman will have recovered sufficiently to fly the Springfield air racing association entry in the Thompson trophy races at Cleveland early next month remains to be seen.

ITALY TO RETIRE 50 BATTLESHIPS

Rome, Aug. 17 (AP)—Approximately 130,000 tons of Italy's fighting ships will be retired beginning August 25 as a result of an economy move and a sweeping reorganization of the Italian fleet.

These will include two battleships, three heavy cruisers, nine light cruisers, 25 destroyers and a dozen submarines, all reasonably old but still within the age limit.

The ships will be stripped of their crews but not immediately scrapped. In this condition they will continue to serve as a bartering point when the world disarmament conference resumes its discussions at Geneva this fall.

Dr. E. W Taylor of Marlborough St. Dies

Dr. Edward W. Taylor former editor of the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal and former head of the neurological department at Massachusetts General Hospital, died today in his home, 457 Marlborough st., Back Bay, following an illness of four months.

Georgia Girls Turn Russian Tour Into Hobo Trip

Moscow, Aug. 17 (AP)—Alva Christensen and Mary L. Degive two girls from Atlanta, Ga., climbed stiffly off a freight car in the railroad yard today at the end of an adventuresome journey from New York.

They had motored across Europe, intending to make an auto tour of Russia, but they encountered unsurmountable difficulties after penetrating only 200 miles of Russian territory, and had to make the last part of the trip with their car by freight.

For four days they lived on a flat car with their auto as the train puffed slowly to Moscow. They prepared their meals from their own supply, using a portable oil stove and sleeping in the automobile. Their first request when they reached here was for a room with a bath.

The girls studied Russian for a month before they left New York, but found their knowledge of the language inadequate for their needs. They expect to find an interpreter here and then to drive on as far as the Volga if roads are suitable.

SOCIETY DRINKS KICKLESS

Seattle, Aug. 17 (AP)—Society is going in for non-alcoholic drinks, Mrs. James M. Doran, wife of the head of the Federal Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, told the Women's Christian Temperance Union today.

"There would be more profit," she said, "for some of the grape growers if they would put as much energy in getting non-alcoholic fruit products to the people as they have tried to put on the questionable enterprise of showing people how to violate the law."

In Washington, D. C., where she lives, Mrs. Doran explained that official sicicty serves non-intoxicating fruit drinks.

"At the 'at home' functions of cabinet officers' wives, for instance, delightful fruit drinks are served, and it is becoming more a matter of routine everywhere throughout the country to serve a fruit drink during dinner," she said.

MARION DAVIES A 'BUDDY'

Seattle, Aug. 17—Keen-eyed men who fought Indians in winning the West have adopted Marion Davies, famous film star, as one of their "buddies" in recognition of her many kindnesses to American war veterans. It was announced today.

She was elected a life member of Gen. Phil Sheridan Camp, National Indian War Veterans, and given the honorary rank of colonel at the recent meeting of the camp here. Col. John R. Dean, state commander, revealed.

Miss Davies also holds the honorary rank of colonel among World War veterans.

In adopting Miss Davies as one of their own members, the Indian War veterans instructed Adjutant Dr. E. A. Selander to order a special badge for her uniform.

The badge was authorized by the War Department for use by all members of the organized Indian war veterans.

Col. Dean said:

"Miss Davies has been very kind to some of our old and ailing members in southern California.

"She has won the love of our comrades by her help and sympathy and the inspiration of her visits to hospitals and homes where they are inmates."

Girl About Town

Silly Verse No. 3

It's not what you'd do with a million,
If riches should e'er be your lot—
It's what you are doing at present
With the dollar and a quarter you've got!
—COMIC-ER DAVE VINE.

Going Swiss Places:

Hard times just a wee mite in evidence on that magnificent estate at Newport—throughout its famous Swiss Village, we mean . . . We noticed those cunning nursery-jingling signs badly in need of fresh coats of colors! . . . You know that picturesque little village, behind the castle on the estate that looks out to sea was a gesture of devotion by the master of the place to his Gracious Lady . . . Who had been so entranced with one in Switzerland that her heart's desire for one of her own was granted—sort of right in her own back yard like! . . . You can drive through it very, very slowly—"for no"—if you're persistent enough to find the out-of-the-way entrance . . . But after you do find it, it's truly a breath of fairyland—especially if the jolly old moon is just popping into view at the twilight hour . . . Mountain goats, cows, horses, ducks, dogs and other barnyard inhabitants have the run of the place . . . And if we're not mistaken, the servants of the great estate live in the tiny Swiss cottages . . . All the fences are made of whittled wood, pegged together with wooden pegs, nary a nail to be found! . . . Try and find the village the next time you're Newport-waying it . . . Get inside the rustic gate before sundown and don't get out of your car—live up to those flip little signs—and 'twill prove a swell eye-drink for you!

Von Detten's Rival!

At last in our snooping about we've found a rival for Beacon st.'s Victor Von Detten and his microscopic mustache . . . For four years we've been aching to do just that! . . . It's nerves-a-twittery, pleasant Dick Edwards, the chief master of ceremonies at Revere's Marathon . . . His upper lip decoration is even more delicately shaped than Von Detten's . . . Their motives for growing, tending, fondling and talking about their 'staches are identical, we've noticed—to attract attention! . . . Dick's is sort of a trade-mark for his freak contest exploiting . . . And Victor's—well, you know how the ladies go for those romantic little twists! . . .

Short Sentences:

Eddie Duchin, of the Central Park Casino, is vacationing with Harry "Pianofingers" Rosenthal subbing for the popular local boy who calls Mayor James J. Walker, "Jimmy" in the chummiest of fashions, with the Mayor approving . . . Cary (Archie Leach) Grant owns a nifty haberdashery in Hollywood which should be a great saving for the elegant Cary, who has always had the rep for oh-such grooming . . . And for proof, wait until you see him as the other man opposite Dietrich in her "Blonde Venus" . . . When Ed. Wynn brings his "Laugh Parade" to the Hub Labor Day Jeanne Aubert and Lawrence Gray will be minus . . . Hub's Gordon Graham and his two side-kicks, better known radioly speaking as "The Funnyboners," in Baltimore this week in a swell new act but with old jokes from away back! . . . Delmont's Ruby Newman's Vic records listed in second place among six best July sellers . . . "Eve Was After Adam" sparkling short story in Sept. Pictorial Review by Brookline's Addison Simmons . . . Senia and Regina Russakoff sure they have marvelous concert material in 14-year-old Pavlowish Bernice Pike . . . For a real Vision-About-Town now there's Ann Boeyln, an ex-Guinan miss, and a red headed woman who's magnetizing the local lads more than that! . . .

Pickups:

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller's voice over the phone has cadence, beauty and charm plus . . . There's a Boston quartet of the Stronger Sex making music and folks merrier up at the Agassiz Hotel in Bethlehem, N. H.—including wrenching the Pretty Ones' hearts to such a degree . . . Culprits are: Clarry Ossen, Dave Bean, Arnold Kirsch and Mitchie Baizen and their favorite gasp is "I think you're swell" for all concerned! . . . Sam Barnes has a menagerie in the back of his flowery with a chipmunk tagged "Jack Sharkey"—because it fought its mate and killed it two trained sparrows, three turtles and two alligators—named Kerrigan and McCarrigan! . . . All Sam needs now is a zombie or two from Tremont street to complete his collection! . . . A late mail brings us one of Mickie Alpert's rare and brief letters with a note inclosed sent to him across tables at the Chez Maurice, Montreal, by customers who are also G-A-T readers . . . Is that something? . . . Readers away up there? . . . Mickie has been held over for three more weeks and is he excited and thinks we should run right across the border to see how he's doing . . . And our flivver with the wheezes now! . . . Two peppy, adorable grandchildren her hobby, partly the reason for Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson of Pride's Crossing taking that old chalet at Saint Jean de Luz, French smart spot . . . Bostonians looking forward to that reception at the Parish House in Winchester on the 26th after Winchester's Pauline Sawyer and Eldo Umland say all those binding words!

Gala Film Year Planned by COLUMBIA PICTURES

Rex Ingram Scores as Actor

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Aug. 17—An enthusiastic account of Alice Terry's work as a director and Rex Ingram's in the role of a screen star has been given by Clarence Brown. Now I haven't gotten it mixed at all for Rex Ingram played the part of a French Legionnaire in a foreign picture he just finished and his wife, who was formerly the beautiful Alice Terry, an American screen favorite, managed the directorial end.

Louella O. Parsons

Alice is here now. She arrived a few days ago and so unheralded was her visit that only a few friends were informed. She brought with her a picture of Rex Ingram, the actor, and we can believe Clarence Brown's word that if Rex would ever get over his peeve against America and come back here he would be a screen favorite. In fact, Clarence offered to put Rex into a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, but, having made a vow that he would do his picture making away from these United States, Mr. Ingram will not listen to reason.

Reporting Days Over

The doors of Columbia Studio were opened wide yesterday to admit young Max Miller, who arrived from San Diego to confer with Walter Wanger. Mr. Miller, a reporter on the San Diego Sun wrote a book called "I Cover the Water-Front." Heyward Broun, the select "New Yorker" and a few other New York highbrow book reviewers, hailed the Miller book as a great novel. Young Miller spent two years writing it and yesterday he landed a movie job with Columbia such as almost any reporter would believe the answer to his prayers. He will write scenarios and there is a chance his book will be put on the screen by Messrs. Cohn and Manger.

Hollywood Chatter

Despite the Lina Basquettes, Lyle Talbots and Edmund Burns, Estelle Taylor and Jack Dempsey have been seeing each other. Estelle left no doubt of her affection for her former husband when she kissed him goodbye at the train. Jack is trying to persuade her to appear on the same program with him and maybe its only because he's a good business man. But this doesn't sound plausible. I still think there is a strong bond of affection between Jack and Estelle. Kay Francis has made several visits to the marathon dance at Santa Monica. She has been accompanied by her husband, Kenneth MacKenna who has helped her get pointers. Kay isn't planning to enter that marathon dance but she has to know all about it for her next picture, "The Lowdown," and she is getting information first hand. I hate to tell her but once you get the habit of going to these marathon dances it's hard to stay away.

The cat came back. Hot cha, CONSTANCE TALMADGE NETCHER's Persian thoroughbred, scratched on the door in the wee sma' hours of the morn after being absent for a night and a day. CHARLES CHAPLIN and GEORGE McMANUS of "Bringing Up Father" fame, talking it over at Henry's. JOSEF VON STERNBERG dining at a nearby table with JULES FURTHMAN. SAM JAFFE has gone to New York with B. P. SCHULBERG and rumor says he will join B. P. in his new independent venture. MRS. EDWIN KNOPF and her two children off for Berlin tomorrow night. They join EDDIE, who is directing a picture. MRS. GEORGE ARCHINBAUD, hostess at a farewell luuncheon for MILDRED KNOPF. PRESTON FOSTER arrested for speeding in his new boat. He says he was never reprimanded for fast driving in his automobile. TOM MIX signing and signing and signing autographs in front of the Brown Derby where the fans congregate each day. FRANK BORZAGE entering his airplane in the Cleveland Derby this coming Sunday. PAUL MUNI with his prison whiskers, giving the lunchers at Al Levy's a surprise. Too much trouble to remove them to eat luncheon. GROUCHO MARX "THE PROFESSOR"

Harpo, Zeppo, Groucho and Chico, yes, they are back again and rocking the Paramount and Uptown theaters with their antics in "Horse Feathers," newest of the Marx triumphs. Sure there is Thelma Todd in there to provide some heart interest, and these Marx clowns do put over their collegiate humor in sterling style.

Hilton Twins Were Bought and Sold Like Slaves for Years

By HARRIS MORGAN

Violet and Daisy Hilton, stage and screen celebrities, present us with one of the most baffling identity problems we've ever tackled. Four times we have met them, and still we cannot tell which is Violet and which is Daisy. That puzzle is back in our brain as we listen to them telling one of the strangest life stories we have ever heard.

* * *

These twins, Nature's twain-in-one and truly inseparables are remarkable in ever so many ways—true beauty, fine intellects, philosophical far beyond their years; and amazingly good performers, as patrons of the RKO Boston know. And then that strange background, surpassing fiction.

"We don't know who our mother was," says Violet.

"High and low we have searched but can find nowhere record of our births," says Daisy.

"Births?" we query, "I thought you were born at the same time."

"May we ask how you know?"

"Certainly, we don't remember, though both present," laughed Daisy.

"We have been told that was so," explains Violet.

"Our mother, we understand, was very poor," Daisy continues. "We are supposed to have been born in England, though no trace of any record can be found in all that country. Soon after our birth, our mother sold us for five pounds sterling, to the wife of a barkeeper. In that paper it was stipulated, if mother ever could get enough to buy us back, she must pay 12 pounds for our return."

That started the famous twins in show business. The buyer exhibited them in the British "pub"; and as the tiniest mites they began as entertainers.

"We have been sold and resold, exhibited all over the world, possessed like a piece of furniture, through many years," Violet tells. "We are 24 years old now; and it wasn't until not so long ago we raised the cry for freedom. We were tired of being hauled about, with no will of our own, and without being able to call ourselves free. So we put up a fight in the courts in this country, and won. Now we are free."

"We were bought and sold about the same way they used to sell slaves," said Daisy.

"All we had was work—rarely any pleasure, no chums, no amusements, just work," Violet states.

Of their many years with carnivals traveling like gypsies under tent, of their childhood in the thralldom of museums with folk and things which made their lives a continuing horror in the reaction upon their young minds they tell the weirdest, most unusual stories. One listens with rapt attention, it sounds so unlike the world we know. There's a great big book of interesting reading in the lives of these twins.

Howard Soon

Better burlesque is the promise of Manager Al Somerby of the Old Howard, which will re-open Saturday, August 27. Manager Somerby states that he will have the productions of the newly organized Empire Burlesque Association. For the initial week the Howard will have as its star, specially engaged for the appearance, Hinda Wassau.

Al Somerby

The cast of the first show includes Harry (Katz) Fields, Jack Greenman.

Manager Somery, outlining the program for the coming season, said:

"The public wants good shows and the Old Howard is preparing to furnish bigger and better shows throughout the whole of the season.

"The first offering will be 'Ballyhoo Review,' with a host of stars."

Timothy O'Toole, Branch Manager, Tells Plans for New Pictures

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Columbia Pictures comes to bat, at this opening of the new film year, with something of a Babe Ruth record behind, and a promise of even better pictures of the home-run hit type, for the coming months. Already, it has put out its first picture, and it's a smash, certain to be one of the best 10 of the year. Study of the others indicates that Columbia has its biggest years ahead.

* * *

Those who know the industry have noted the rapid rise of this organization, under the able leadership of Harry and Jack Cohn. From Timothy F. O'Toole, Boston branch manager for Columbia, we received during an interview, facts on which to base a forecast of Columbia's contributions toward what looks like a mighty good year for films. Mr. O'Toole tells of "American Madness," now released, but we don't need his assurances of its merit—having seen it twice, we can wholeheartedly accord that photoplay top honors.

T. F. O'Toole

"But we have other stellar pictures," Mr. O'Toole goes on. "Your own Louella Parsons often refers to Columbia's excellence and enterprise. She has had much mention of late of one of our big new pictures—'The Bitter Tea of General Yen.' Barbara Stanwyck will be its star.

"That's only one of the great ones. In the industry it is recognized that this will be Columbia's year—Harry and Jack Cohn stand for, nationally, what Abe Montague and Joe McConville have long stood for for this section of the country—the best, delivered as per promised schedule. Faith in them is based on experience in the results of their effort.

"Among others, we shall have from Columbia studios, Washington Merry-Go-Round, about which Miss Parsons has written much; Wheeler & Woolsey in a feature not yet finally titled; Child of Manhattan, superbly produced; No More Orchids, Air Hostess; S. N. Behrman's stage hit, Brief Moment; Fannie Hurst's East of Fifth Avenue; and The Public Be Damned, which will create a sensation. There are a great many others—I must not forget to mention Joseph Hergesheimer's novel, The Dictator.

"Our four Jack Holt pictures will be corkers, and you know what that means. Our studios are busy, units of activity wherein the best in skill are making the best in films. Columbia has built itself up on that foundation of excellence, and swift success has proven the merit of the Cohn idea.

"One feature in Columbia's program now is the corporation's recognition of the fact, that to encourage more people to see pictures, there must be something new in the pictures. Our product will show how this has been effected."

Mr. O'Toole [illegible] live wire of the Cohn-Montague-McConville kind. He has been associated with them through all the period of upbuilding.

"Columbia is out to say it with better pictures," he tells us. "Better pictures mean better business in the theaters—mean a stimulus for industry, and the nation. Columbia has planned this for its best year. Columbia has faith in the nation and in prosperity, because it is keeping faith with picture patrons and exhibitors."

Thinking of the great pictures Columbia has put out, we gladly say "Cheerio" to Columbia's 1932-33 schedule.

Globe Trotter

The marathon classic and the aquatic events at the Olympic games in Los Angeles provide thrill after thrill to the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, now at Loew's State. Not least of these thrills is provided by Juan Carlos Zabala, the 20-year-old Argentine lad who captured the marathon crown from a field of 27 starters, to the frenzied delight of 70,000 spectators.

From the start Zabala sets the pace and as the great race nears the end, many of the contestants drop from exhaustion, but not Zabala. Completing the more than 26 miles of the race far ahead of the nearest contestants he gleefully tells in his own language without even pausing for breath his feelings of triumph in breaking the Olympic record for that classic.

Other pictures show the U. S. team winning the 400 meter relays for girls.

BINGHAM WILL PUSH REPEAL AMENDMENT

Washington, Aug. 17 (INS)—A perfected prohibition repeal amendment will be pushed at the next session of Congress by Senator Bingham (R) of Connecticut, it was learned today, because of the many meetings of state legislatures next year.

The pending Bingham amendment provides for ratification by the states through conventions whose delegates are elected by the majority of the people of the state.

This provision the senator intends to eliminate, for two reasons—that it might vitiate the whole proceeding, in the view of many constitutional lawyers, and because of the impending meetings of the state law-making bodies.

The legislative situation in the Senate is such that either the Bingham repeal amendment or the Glass amendment, which closely follows the lines of President Hoover's acceptance speech, may be taken up on motion.

Neither is the unfinished business of the Senate, nor is anything else. Both are on the calendar and can be considered on a majority vote.

Martin Carey of 27 Rock Hill pk., Roxbury, only passenger on the bus, was slightly shaken up. He was sent to his home after examination by a physician.

William J. Brackett, of 171 Raymond st., Cambridge, operator of the bus, told police the Purcell sedan crashed into him.

At the hospital, Purcell told police he had turned out to avoid striking a parked car. Before he could change his direction he struck the left front side of the bus.

WAR DEBT CUT BY U. S. URGED

Williamstown, Aug. 17 (AP)—Prof. John H. Williams of Harvard University said at the Institute of Politics today, that American taxpayers are beginning to realize that reduction of war debts would be to their advantage for three reasons. He said these were:

First—Insistence upon full payment may bring about default or repudiation.

Second—Certain compensations may be secured through reduction of the debts which would more than compensate the American people for loss of the debt payments.

Third—The process of payment has harmed our international trade.

Williams proposed that after the elections in November the President and Congress authorize the recreation of the foreign debt-funding commission to re-examine the debt-funding agreements and revise them in accordance with the changed capacity of each debtor nation to pay.

HOOVER STAND SEEN AS DEAL WITH DRYS

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Democratic leaders throughout the country are preparing to challenge the sincerity of the "about face" made by President Hoover in his acceptance speech on the 18th Amendment.

Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the Massachusetts Democratic state committee, back from the conference of New England Democratic state chairman with James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee, said today that the alacrity with which the dry leaders accepted the "desertion" from their cause by the President is regarded by the Democrats as "highly suspicious."

DEAL WITH DRYS SEEN

"It looks like a deal with the Anti-Saloon League," Maynard said. "The dry organizations were too quick to capitulate. The haste with which they rushed in to endorse President Hoover has made many people sit up and think. And I don't think the wets are in the mood to be fooled this time."

Maynard was profuse in his praise for the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, Speaker John N. Garner of Texas, as a result of his contact with Garner at the conference.

"I think Speaker Garner is a wonderful man. He gives you a straight answer to every question. There is no straddling in his makeup. The Republicans who have been whispering that Garner deserted "Al" Smith in 1928, hpoing to divide the Democrats of the North, will find that their despicable tactics will react against themselves.

"They will find that it won't work this time."

Optimism for the success of the Democratic national ticket in Massachusetts was voiced by Chairman Maynard. From his contacts throughout the state, Maynard said, there is evidence of enthusiasm everywhere. As an instance of the confidence which exists, he pointed to the record number of Democrats who are out this year for state and county places in the primaries.

"It simply reflects," he said, "the great feeling of unrest which exists against the present national administration. The people everywhere are looking for a change. They believe that "Happy times" will come again only with the scrapping of the present national policies."

Insofar as the gubernatorial situation is concerned, Maynard predicted that Governor Ely will "be returned with the greatest plurality ever given a Democratic Governor."

WOMEN TO BE ACTIVE

"When the primaries are over and the election campaign gets under way, Governor Ely will be a 3 to 1 favorite over his Republican opponent," he contended.

From now until the primaries, the chairman said, the state committee will bend all its efforts towards building up the county organizations and to high pressure registration work.

He also revealed that the women members of the party are going to be recognized as never before, that they will be taken whole-heartedly into the party councils and allowed to share fully in the responsibilities of the campaign.

FANNING

—With GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

An Unbeatable Trio. ↑ Long Legged Lon.
Myers, Nurmi, Carr. The Flying Finn.
Let's Look 'Em Over. ↓ And Bullet Bill.

Can Tolan Do "Evens" From Standing Start?

YEAH, WHEN MARCUS AURELIUS, the Old Onion, said "Fame is fleeting," he certainly said a mouthful. We had that driven home a few minutes ago by Ralph Colson, the fellow that fractured a whole flock of scholastic records when captaining East Boston High and then went to Penn and was the Red and Blue's star center, and who now is running for Representative from Ward 20 in West Roxbury. Ralph breezed in to the sporting sanctum sanctorum, appropriated George Grimm's pet chair, planted his brogans on Ray Helgesen's desk, and queried of everyone in general and no one in particular:

"You old timers like to harp on the deeds of your moth bitten heroes, but tell me, did you ever have a runner like Paavo Nurmi or Bill Carr?"

"Well, I wish Lon Myers were alive today," we remarked, putting in our oar, "and could do a little running on these new fangled peat bottomed tracks."

"Who in hek was Lon Myers?" queried Ralph. "Never heard of him!"

"Ouch! "Who was Lon Myers? Never heard of him." When Colson said that we started to stutter and stammer and grew so red in the face that Shorty, the Office Boy, thought we were going to blow up. Yes, Marcus, you said a mouthful. Fame is fleeting. Think of an athletic guy who never heard of Lon Myers. As Mister Hennessey might say, "The ign'rance of him is amazin'." G'wan back to the kindergarten, Ralph! What do you know about electricity!

LON MYERS WON national championships of America at every distance from 100 yards to half a mile. In a special one mile match race with W. G. George of England, then holder of the world's record of 4.12¾, Lon humbled the Pride of Britannia. Do you think Carr or Nurmi could win American championships at four distances and humble the world's record holder at another? Myers ran in the days of old dirt tracks that resembled cow paths, the days of spikeless shoes and standing starts. Lon did 100 yards from a standing start in 10 seconds flat. We wonder if Eddie Tolan could do a 100 in "evens" from a standing start? We doubt it.

SOMETIMES ATHLETES come along who are peculiarly aided by Nature. Lon Myers was of this type. So was Bob Fitzsimmons. Lon was the direct antithesis of Bob. Fitz was all arms and shoulders. He carried all of his weight above the waist. Freckled Bob had the torso of a heavyweight, mounted upon the lower extremities of a lightweight. Lon Myers was just the opposite. Lon was all legs and no body. His comparatively slight, frail upper body was mounted upon a pair of phenomenally long, muscular legs that carried his slight frame with long, springy stride along at an amazing clip. Not so long ago we saw a picture of Myers and W. G. George standing together. George, a towering six footer, was almost a head taller than Myers, yet Myers had such a long pair of legs and was so "high split" that his waist line was above the Englishman's.

BUT WHICH WAS the greatest all around runner between Lon Myers and Paavo Nurmi? I dunno—I dunno! The Flying Finn certainly is a marvelous piece of running machinery. Think of a fellow who has held all world's records at distances from one mile to the Marathon! We'll have to be fair and admit that being a world's record holder in events from one mile to 26 miles 385 yards is perhaps as great a thing as being invincible from 100 yards to the mile, as was Myers. Yes, even though we shed bitter, salty tears for our beloved old timers as we admit it, Paavo Nurmi comes close to being the greatest runner the world ever has seen, greater—Sniff! Sniff!—greater than even Lon Myers of the blessed memories.

DO YOU KNOW that Nurmi has been running for almost 20 years, two decades? Eighteen years to be exact. 'Way back in 1914, when he was a youth of 17, he won his first race, a 3000 meter event in his home of Turku. Twenty years in the game, and still going strong, like Johnnie Walker, who still is going strong everywhere except in America. Twenty years in the game and still fronting the pack of the world's greatest distance men! His only real rival is that wiry little Broncho of the Pampas, Juan Zabala. If Nurmi's amateur rating is approved by the National A. A. U, and his entry is accepted for the International Marathon at Rockingham, you'll see the distance race of a lifetime. Yes, Sir, and M'am, a Nurmi-Zabala duel will furnish the Race of the Century!

WE WERE JUST looking over the list of official world's records credited to Nurmi. Thirteen of 'em outdoors and 16 unofficial indoor records. A total of 29 world's records! Whew! E'en a fervid "Holy Mackerel!" We'll have to admit Paavo Nurmi can run a bit, even perhaps as fast as Lon Myers. A moss bitten Old Timer lifts his battered old chapeau to the Flying Finn.

BUT HOLD ON. Here's Ralph Colson again. "Say, there's one thing you alleged athletic experts seems to have missed about Bill Carr," says Ralph. "You're all harping about his being the world's greater quarter-miler, something I told you he was long before he beat Blazing Ben Eastman. But none of you seem to know what a crack all around performer Bill is. Do you know that I think Bill Carr could give Jim Bausch a mighty stiff argument in the Decathlon?

"JUST FIGGER it out," continued Ralph, now in high gear and hitting on all cylinders. "Take the ten events of the Decathlon. What has Carr done? What can he do? Well, in one Princeton Scholastic meet, I saw him win the 100 yards in 9 9-10 seconds, the 220 low hurdles in 24 seconds, the high jump with 6 feet 1, and the broad jump with 24 feet. Remember that was when he was a mere kid. He has done 100 meters in 10 3-5 seconds, the 400 meters in 46 2-5 seconds. He can top the high hurdles in 15 2-5 seconds, run 1500 meter under 6 minutes, beat 6 feet 1 inch in the high jump, 24 feet in the broad and pole vault 11 feet 6 inches. Where he would fall down would be in the weight events, for Bill only is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 140 pounds. But at that Bill can throw the javelin 165 feet, the shot around 40 and the discus about 125 feet.

"YES, WHEN IT comes to athletes," concluded Colson, as he eased himself out of the chair and started for the door, "give me Bullet Bill Carr. I even might wager a month's wages of the salary I hope to draw as Representative that he even could beat Jim Bausch in all around competition. You can have Paavo Nurmi. I claim Bill Carr is the greatest athlete in the world!"

LEONARD FINDS ROAD BACK IS STEEP

By BILL CORUM

New York, Aug. 17—I met Benny Leonard on 106th st. near the Drive early yesterday morning. A silver moon rode high above the Hudson. I guess it must have been around 1 o'clock—an hour too late for the old folks, too early for the young ones. The two of us were all alone in the street. For all evidence to the contrary we might have been alone in a sleeping world.

"You've been nice to me," said Benny in greeting. "You've helped, and I need some help right now."

"No nicer to you," I replied, "than I thought you had coming."

"Let me tell you the story," he said.

"Go ahead," I said.

This is the story.

In the first place, I'm not as good as I used to be. I'm not kidding myself and I wouldn't try to kid you. My head is as good as it used to be. It's better. I see things plainer in the ring now than I saw them the best night I ever had. And I had some pretty good nights, Bill. Nights when I could have fought all night, all week, the way I felt.

COULD HAVE KAYOED KIDS

I have seen a spot against every one of these kids I've met since I came back where, if I dared to cut loose, I should have knocked him out. But I didn't dare. I realized that if I failed it might be too bad. But I knew in my heart the opening was there. They are game and rough and tough, most of these kids, but they don't know a great deal about fighting. Science to them is just a word in the dictionary.

But I have had to start all my fights with an idea of saving myself. "You are an old man now, Benny," I've told myself,

Helen Jacobs' Pluck Earns Plaudits

By LEWIS BURTON

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 17—You simply must doff your Panama to blue-eyed Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Cal.

Plucky and persistent, she has been tracking the women's national tennis championship for five years, scorning at set-backs, and making a habit of returning better than ever.

They started calling Miss Jacobs "the coming champion" in 1924, when she was 15 years of age. That was the year she won the junior nationals in 1925.

STEPS UP A NOTCH

Another year among the juniors was ahead of her, but Helen stepped into the women's class and started the long battle.

She entered her first women's national tournament in 1927, reached the semifinals and then crashed up against Helen Wills. In 1928, it was Helen Wills in the final. In 1929, Helen Jacobs went to Wimbledon and reached the final In 1930, she advanced to the Paris finals, and a doctor's prescription for rest kept her idle after that.

Discouraging, eh? But not to Helen Jacobs. Today she is better than ever. She defeated the French champion and the German champion at Wimbledon, where she met her old nemesis, Helen Wills Moody, in the final. Upon returning home, she won the Seabright and Easthampton tournaments.

"POKER FACE" ON COURT

Dour and and all concentration when in action, Miss Jacobs isn't what you'd call a "personality player." On court she belongs in the poker-face circle.

Off court, she is a charming personality who makes you wonder why the press doesn't refer to her as "pretty Helen Jacobs"

Perhaps they're waiting for Helen to win the Nationals. Then the superlatives will come all at once. And if she wins, I'm going to demand hush money from California's native Sonia. Else I'll reveal that Helen Jacobs was born in Globe, Arizona.

MARCHIONESS PICKED TO WIN $60,000 PURSE

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP)—Seven speedy trotters were named over night to go to the starting line in the $60,000 Hambletonian blue-ribbon classic of harness-horse racing here today. The race was to be run in two or more one-mile heats, the first at 2 p. m.

he 5-to-3 favorite was The Marchioness from Auburn, N. Y., with Hollyrood Dennis the second choice at 2 to 1.

Other probable starters with their betting odds were Calumet Chuck, 6 to 1; Brevere, 8 to 1; Calumet Crusader, 12 to 1; Invader, 12 to 1; The Lad, 12 to 1.

The Marchioness and Hollyrood Dennis both seemed likely to threaten the Hambletonian record of 2:02½, hung up by Spencer in 1928.

Braves Fight to Escape Second Division Berth

Special to the Boston American

Chicago, Aug. 17—Boston's Braves, in third place and only three games from the lead a short week ago, enter the second game of their current series with the pace-setting Cubs, this p. m., staggering under six straight defeats which have knocked them down into a tie for fifth place, six games back of the peak and under the .500 mark for the first time this season.

The present slump of the Warriors is their longest of the campaign and it comes at a time when it hurts the most. The visitors are still contenders but they must snap out of their losing ways in a hurry or give up all hope of playing a prominent part in the hectic last lap dash for the National League championship.

As they are situated today, another defeat coupled with a victory for St. Louis with whom they are now tied, would send the Tribesmen into sixth place, seven games from the attic.

BROWN BRAVES' CHOICE

Manager Bill McKechnie will pin his hopes on Bobby Brown, the infant of his hurling corps, in today's all-important game. It's a tough spot for a 21-year-old kid serving his first season in the majors, but Nantasket Bobby is one of those young men who does his best under pressure and he should cause the Cubs plenty of heartaches, if he has his control. When he's hitting the target with blinding speed, there are few tougher pitchers in the business to whip.

The Cubs are still only one game up on the field, so they too must employ one of their best mound bets today. Pilot Charlie Grimm is counting on Bobby Smith, who started his career as a Brave.

TRIBE NEAR VICTORY

Until the Cubs went to bat in the final frame of the first contest, it was a 100 to 1 bet that the Braves would break their losing streak.

After seven scoreless frames, the visitors knocked Lon Warneke, native ace, off the hill and counted three times in the eighth. Then Ed "Lefty" Brandt hurled his eighth straight scoreless stanza.

The Braves were helpless before Tinning in the ninth and Brandt retired the first Cub to face him in the last half. Then the barrage started.

Herman, English and Cuyler doubled in succession, two runs came in and Cantwell replaced Brandt. The relief hurler was found for three singles with the aid of an error sent over two more runs and ended the game with two out.

HOLLAND MAKES DEBUT

Up to the ninth, the Cubs had collected only two singles and one walk from Brandt.

Dutch Holland, rookie outfielder from Seattle, made his debut as a Brave, going to left field. He made one single in four times at bat and that was most timely, coming with the bases full. He didn't have a chance in the field.

As the Pirates whipped the Dodgers the Cubs failed to increase their one-game lead in the race but they did lengthen their lead over the third-place Brooklyn entry to 2½ games and they also pulled five games away from the fourth-place Phils, who were tripped up by the Cardinals.

MANGIN BESTS ENGLISH STAR AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Aug. 17 (AP)—Henry W. "Bunny" Austin, England's outstanding tennis player, today was eliminated in the fourth round of the Newport Casino turf classic by Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., in straight sets, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Austin, top-seeded foreign player, was often forced into errors by his opponent's tricky change of pace. The latter was deadly at the net. This international pair have met four times and Austin has prevailed only once.

JONES BEATS PARKER

Dave Jones of New York gained the round of eight by defeating Frankie Parker of Milwaukee, the 16-year-old holder of the junior championship, who was having his first try on grass. The scores were 6—4, 6—1, 12—10.

Another Briton fell when Wilmer Allison, United States Davis Cup star, came from behind to overwhelm Ted Avory, 5—7, 6—2, 6—2. Allison made a slow start against the invader, but outclassed him by the widest margin when he hit his usual stride.

EAGLES TO TRAIN AT JACKSON

Football training for Coach Joe McKenney's Boston College Eagles will get underway August 29 at Jackson, N. H., an announcement from Boston College stated today.

Due to the construction of the new Boston College stadium at the Heights, the regular grid at Newton will not be available this fall.

ACCEPT OFFER

Joseph McHugh, a teacher at Boston College High School extended an invitation to Coach McKenney to bring his varsity squad to McHugh's camp at Jackson, N. H., where every facility for training is available.

Coach McKenney accepted the offer. In addition to the squad, the Eagle coaching staff included McKenney, Bill Ormsby, and Bill Kelleher will make the trip. The Eagle squad will stay at Jackson for two weeks.

NATIONAL A. A. U. MUST PASS ON NURMI CASE

FACEY WOULD SEND ENTRY TO N. Y. BOARD

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

The case of Paavo Nurmi, world's greatest runner, vs. The International Amateur Athletic Federation, will not be decided by the registration committee of the New England association.

When the Flying Finn applies for a permit to compete against Juan Zabala, Olympic Marathon winner, in the International Marathon at Rockingham, one week from Sunday, the matter will be passed on directly to the National A. A. U. in New York. Chairman J. Frank Facey of the Registration Committee of the New England Association made this definite statement to the writer this morning.

"This important case is not within the province of the local Association to decide," said Facey. "When a foreign athlete competes in New England it has been the custom for him to present credentials visaed by the National A. A. U. upon recommendation of the amateur sports governing body of the country from which he comes. He must present such papers to us if he wants to compete at Rockingham.

"If Nurmi files an entry without such papers for the Rockingham race all I can do, as far as I can see—and I am speaking personally and not for the Committee which can give nothing out until the case comes before it—is to forward the entry to the National Association in New York for decision by the National Registration Committee or the Committee on Foreign Relations."

ENTRY WOULD GO TO A. A. U.

"What recommendation will you make?" Facey was asked.

"I can't say that I will make any," was his reply. "If Nurmi wants a U. S. decision on his amateur status it is up to him or the Finnish Amateur Athletic Union to apply directly to the National Association of the A. A. U."

"What disposition do you think the National Association will make of the Nurmi case if it is brought before them?" the reporter further queried. Facey answered:

"It is hard to tell. The Amateur Athletic Union is a member of the International Amateur Athletic Federation which rejected Nurmi's entry for the Olympic games. The A. A. U. is bound to respect and observe the rulings of the International Federation.

NURMI NOT SUSPENDED

"But the Federation did not suspend Nurmi as an amateur, did not declare him a professional. The Federation simply rejected his entry for the Olympic Games. The rejection of the entry, I would assume, implies a question of Nurmi's amateur status. Whether the implication is strong enough for the A. A. U. of America also to reject his entry for the Rockingham race I do not know."

"The International federation has made a fine mess of the Nurmi case. Instead of hearing his appeal and clearing him of professional charges or definitely barring him as an amateur, the federation held over the matter until its next meeting, which doesn't take place for two years."

MAY RUN AT WORCESTER

"The Finns of Worcester" declared Mr. Facey, "asked me if I would permit Nurmi, if he came to Worcester for their games next Sunday, to give a special exhibition after the games were over. I saw no reason to prohibit that. If Nurmi wants to run an exhibition at Rockingham after the Marathon is over, I don't think the local A. A. U. will refuse it.

"I also see that Clarence DeMar's name has been mentioned in connection with the Rockingham race," concluded Facey. "I doubt if DeMar will consent to race Zabala so soon after the National Amateur Marathon championship, which will be run under the auspices of a Washington newspaper next Saturday. DeMar will go to Washington for that race. Eight days will give him scant time to recover from the Washington Marathon. Besides DeMar is against competing on Sunday."

Pinckert Joins Pros for $5000

Los Angeles, Aug. 17 (INS)—For a sum reported to be $5000 a season Ernie Pinckert, All-American backfield man last season at the University of Southern California, today had signed a contract to play professional football with the New York Giants and will leave for the East within two weeks.

$1,000,000 Surplus Retires Olympic Bond

Los Angeles, Aug. 17 (INS)—Financial surplus of $1,000,000 from the Olympic games will enable the organizing committee to repay the State of California that amount to retire a bond issue voted for the spectacle, officials announced today.

N. E. RING KING STUDIES AND SAVES FOR FUTURE

World Title Fight Goal of Zachow

This is the third and final chapter of Ad Zachow's life story as told to Jack Conway

By AD ZACHOW

I went to live with Albert P. Sherry at Dover, N. H., so that he would be able to devote more time to my ring advancement. I had graduated from Portland high, and was figuring on giving all of my attention to boxing when Sherry suggested that I enter New Hampshire University.

I did. I studied hard but I couldn't keep my mind on my work. I was thinking of the ring and the path that leads to glory and fame. I went to Sherry and told him I wanted to leave college and try my fortune in the ring. I agreed that if I failed I would return to college.

Sherry reluctantly consented to my plan. He was more interested in seeing that I gained a college degree and starting in my [illegible] than [illegible] a ring title which often brings worry and unhappiness.

LIKES TO READ

I didn't cease to study after I left college. I [illegible] [illegible] and I read particularly the life stories of famous men.

When I retire from the boxing game I hope to earn a degree as Pa. Reed did. Pa was a former middleweight. After he retired from the ring he attended Harvard Summer School and then New Hampshire University from which place he received a degree.

[illegible] in the boxing game with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. I [illegible] my feet fly with reckless abandon. Polly Sims, Roddy Brown, Eddie Dempsey, Vincent Forgione, Johnny Abreau, Frankie Fields and Nap Proulx went down to defeat before me.

I had improved my boxing. I'm going to let you in on two secrets.

DEVELOPED GOOD LEFT

Al Sherry called Patsy Haley from New York to Dover to give me some pointers in the fine points of the game. Haley is a referee in New York and formerly was one of the world's leading boxers. Patsy coached me in the art of using a left hand.

A left hand is a boxer's most important weapon. It enables him to attack, and also to keep out of the way of punishment.

Sherry also arranged for George Byers, famous colored boxer, to give me some lessons. Byers is a marvelous teacher. He shortened up my punches, and showed me how to hit while going away. He impressed on me that a boxer is no better than while pulling away from an opponent.

If one merely moves away without hitting he does not help his own standing, but if he keeps firing punches as he steps back he makes himself dangerous. A boxer's opponent is liable to get careless while he follows a man apparently on the retreat. He is then wide open to be hit by a well directed punch.

Eddie Mack of the Argonne Club offered me a bout with Leo Larivee for the middleweight championship of New England. I had seen Larivee in his bouts with Odonne Piazza and felt I could beat him. I readily consented to take the small end of the purse to get a crack at the champion.

When I went to the center of the ring for instructions I decided I would carry the fight to Larivee from the start. I had noticed that he is a swinger. He loops his right hand instead of letting it go straight. I felt sure that my short left hook would get inside of Larivee's looping right.

Larivee came out of his corner fighting. I forced him back and stepped inside of his wide right hand drives.

I finally got him [illegible] the ropes near a neutral corner and [illegible] him on the chin with a left hook which didn't travel more than six inches before it hit its mark.

Larivee's eyes became glassy, while his knees started to [illegible]. I knew I had my man. I [illegible] right hand to the chin and Larivee hit the canvas.

HAD CHAMP IN POOR SHAPE

Leo was up at the count of nine but was out on his feet. He kept his left hand out and ran backwards. I caught up to him with a right hand which sent him down for the second time. The referee had counted to five when the gong sounded for the end of the round.

I came out fighting in the second session. I nailed Larivee with two left hooks which shook him up to the soles of his feet. As he started to topple, I breezed my right to the jaw.

A towel from Larivee's corner stopped the bout at the count of three.

Of course I was thrilled to win the New England middleweight championship. I was mighty happy when I returned to Dover, N. H., and was greeted by Mayor J. Jewett Chesley and other civic leaders.

Incidentally my dad was in my corner the night I knocked out Larivee. He will also be in my corner if I can get a crack at Marcel Thil, the Frenchman who won the world's middleweight title when he won from Gorilla Jones on a foul.

If I can get Thil into a ring, I feel sure I shall bring the middleweight crown back to America. It belongs here.

(THE END)

REF. MANGOLD SUSPENDED BY BOARD

Newark, N. J., Aug. 17 (AP)—Referee Joe Mangold, who gave the decision to Stanley Poreda in a 10-round bout with Primo Carnera last night today was suspended indefinitely by the Newark State Athletic Commission for what was termed an unpardonable decision.

"The decision given by Mangold was the worst I have ever seen," Commissioner George E. Keenan said in announcing the suspension. "He can't possibly have any excuse for his action, and I have decided to suspend him and keep him suspended until he learns how to judge a fight."

FANS HOOT DECISION

Most newspaper writers at the ringside saw Carnera the winner by a large margin, many scoring eight rounds for the big Italian and only two for Poreda. Many in the crowd gave vocal disapproval of the decision and showered the ring with cushions and straw hats.

Jordan's Baseball Nine Whips Filenes

In the season's second classic played last night Jordan Marsh Company romped over Filene's by the score of 9-2. [illegible], Jordan's pitcher, hurled for the victors allowing the heavy-hitting Filene team but four hits.

OTTAWA BACK, N. Y. IS OUT OF N. H. L.

By BILL GRIMES

From a reliable source, the writer has been informed that not only has Bill Dwyer withdrawn his New York Americans from the National Hockey League but also that Ottawa, after a year on the sidelines, will operate its franchise again this coming season.

When Bill Dwyer decided to toss up the sponge, the National Hockey League was confronted with the necessity of operating a seven club circuit, which would have been a sign of weakness. So Pres. Frank Calder and his Board of Governors brought pressure to bear on the Ottawa owners, who finally consented to recall their players and operate.

Since professional hockey entered the "states," Ottawa has been unable to keep up with the Joneses, primarily as its arena is far too small for present day hockey and secondly because the Capitol City fans refused to turn out while the team was holding up the international division of the N. H. L.

FRANCHISE COSTLY

During the past two or three years, Ottawa has made numerous attempts to dispose of its franchise but, due to the exorbitant price, without success.

According to the story, Ottawa would not have been able to dispose of its club and franchise unless it operated this season.

DWYER HAD HARD TIME

The stand taken by Bill Dwyer was not unexpected. Dwyer has been carrying the freight ever since he was inveigled into professional hockey.

He had a contract with the Madison Sq. Garden of New York which required the Americans to pay 50 per cent of the gross receipts of all home games, plus all expenses incidental to the playing of each game such as ticket sellers and takers police, ushers, lights, cost of making the ice, etc.

From the start of his career as a N. H. L. magnate, Bill Dwyer was up against the "toppers." Under his contract it was impossible for him to break even and each year he was in the red for plenty. Then, too, he owned the New Haven Eagles of the Canadian American League which also cost him thousands of dollars each season.

DWYER DESERVES BREAK

The New York Madison Square Garden will lose a fine source of revenue with the Americans out of the N. H. L. and after a season it is possible that Bill Dwyer may be able to re-enter the league and play under a contract which will give him a break, to which he is certainly entitled after all he has done for the game in this country.

With the return of Ottawa, and the stepping aside of the Americans, the N. H. L. will remain an eight club organization with four teams in this country and an equal number in Canada.

Up Trail Is Hard, Says Leonard

"take your time, don't take chances, use your head—it's the best punch you've got left."

That's why I've looked better in the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds. I've opened up a little then, because I knew that no matter how tired I got I could last the distance.

NEEDS MORE FIGHTS

Another thing is that it comes back bit by bit as you go along. I still need fights. I'm better than I was, but not quite as good as I can get. And I tell you again that I'm not kidding anybody, least of all myself.

Styles make fights and I can beat McLarnin as sure as we are standing here. Jimmy knows the answers, too. He won't lead any right hands. He's taking care of McLarnin in there, just like I'm taking care of Leonard. He'll give me plenty of room and plenty of time. It ought to be a great boxing match, but I'll outbox him. He's not getting any younger, either, you know.

I'm not boasting. I wouldn't tell you anything that was wrong, not intentionally. But I don't think any fighter in the world ever worked as hard trying to come back as I have.

LONG, LONG TRAIL BACK

Only a fellow who has been through it can possibly understand. You are a retired, undefeated champion until you put on those gloves again, then you are just another pug around the gym. It's like a writer having to go back to kindergarten to learn to spell. Like Walker running for alderman. Like an ex-rich contractor going back to the hod. It's no fun.

You are not even on a par with the novices around the gym, as a matter of fact. The managers, trainers and hangers-on look at them as potential prospects. They look at you with pity.

After I had decided to try a comeback I ducked my friends for weeks. When the reporters caught me training in Orangeburg I told them some cock and bull story about trying to take off weight so I'd look all right in a bathing suit. That was two years ago, and those two years have been the toughest of my life.

"SO YOU'RE THE CHAMP?"

After I had finally got into pretty fair physical shape Teddy Hayes and I went up into Maine and Vermont to try it out. Those were fights I'd just as soon forget. We fought in little rooms with the air so full of smoke you couldn't breathe freely, even if you weren't gasping for breath.

Most of the time I was. I fought six-rounders with local prides who knew more about butting than they did punching and believe me you had to protect yourself at all times against them, sure enough. There was nobody around there who was going to protect you.

One night I got eight bucks for my end after we had paid expenses. Almost the last time I had been in real fight previous to that Lew Tendler and I had drawn $450,000. That may give you some idea of what it's like to try to come back.

Another time a pair of drunks got right in my corner, so close that they could rest their heads on the edge of the ring and spent the entire bout giving me the Bronx cheer.

"So you're the champion, eh?" they kept inquiring. "Well, if you're the champion, why don't you knock our pal, Billy, out?"

Now Billy was the kind not even Dempsey could have knocked out with a sledge hammer. I couldn't even dent him. And to make matters worse, every now and then my friends would reach into the ring grab me by the ankles and give me a little yank. Just to help their pal, Billy, out I guess.

All of which is why I feel now as though I was entitled to some sort of break. I am not trying to make anybody believe I'm the Leonard of ten years ago. But I did do this comeback business the hard way. When I fight McLarnin I'm going to be the best Leonard I can be at 36. I'll give 'em the best fight I know.

And that's the man's story.

RHYNE FACES BROWNS FOR SOX TODAY

By JOE CASHMAN

Hal Rhyne, the smartest and best fielding shortstop in the league last season but an almost total loss to the Red Sox since the early weeks of this campaign, will return to the lineup for the second game of the series with the Browns at the Fens this afternoon.

Hal attempted a comeback against the A's, but after two games he found that his foot was still weak and returned to the bench. If he doesn't get hurt again, he expects to be able to play regularly from here in.

It was during the Sox first visit to Detroit that the little shortstop received the injury which has kept him out of more than half of the games the team has played. He strained or pulled some muscle on the side of his right foot near the toes while sliding to a bag.

SOX NEED RHYNE

The long absence of Rhyne has hurt the Sox considerably this season. Had he been able to play regularly the club probably wouldn't be any higher in the standing, but it certainly would have captured several games it lost and might be within hailing distance of seventh place at this time.

He moves his mates around like a master chessman manipulating his powns and rarely does he make a mistake. The Sox look like an entirely different club when he's in the game.

Ivy Paul—or maybe it's Paul Ivy—Andrews will do the flinging for the McManusmen in the second contest with the Browns. Opponents will settle all doubt as to the young man's proper handle by christening him "Poison Ivy" if he turns in a few more efforts like his last start. On that occasion he whipped the Mackmen, 2 to 1, and fanned eight of the champions, including Al Simmons thrice.

Andrews is one of the pitchers secured from the Yanks in the deal for Danny MacFayden and right now he shapes up as the ace of a young staff that McManus has high hopes will develop into one of the best in the circuit.

"Andrews, Rhodes, Welch, Kline, Durham, Boerner, Gallagher, McNaughton, Weiland and Michaels may shape up like a weak mound staff today," says the pilot, "but each of these flingers is in his early twenties, has plenty of stuff, and with a bit more experience should become a star. I look for the Sox hill corps to be one of the most formidable in the game next season."

FUTURE BRIGHT

Boss Martin also believes he has the nucleus of a strong supporting cast for 1933 in Alexander, Johnson and Jolley. He predicts he can build a first class team around this trio providing he can find another catcher and a classy infielder.

The opening game of the series with the Browns found the Sox going down to a 3 to 2 defeat in a thrilly and snappy contest. Though he allowed just as many hits and three more passes than two Boston pitchers, Walter Stewart, the hostiles' smooth southpaw, was immense in the pinches and walked off with the verdict.

GUILFORD IN TOP FORM

EX-CHAMPION IS THREAT IN U. S. GOLF

By BILL GRIMES

When the sectional qualifiers gather at Five Farms to battle through 36 more holes for the 32-match play berths, New England will have 13 representatives including Francis Ouimet, the defending champion.

Of the 12 who qualified at Brae Burn seven are from Massachusetts, three from Connecticut and two from Rhode Island.

JESSE PRACTISING

One of the most encouraging features in the play at Brae Burn was the golf played by Jesse P. Guilford, the former national champion. For obvious reasons, Jesse Guilford has not had his heart in his golf game for years but early this spring he began to display a renewed interest. He will be back in his 1922 form when the United States amateur championship gets under way at Baltimore.

Jesse Guilford is particularly anxious to register in the nationals this year. From now until he tees off in the first qualifying round at Five Farms, Guilford will devote all his spare time to polishing up his game.

TRIO IN FIRST U. S. PLAY

Three of the Mass qualifiers Win Trowbridge of Cohasset Johnny Nies, United Shoe and Phil Simons, Longmeadow, have never played in a United States amateur championship. In fact, Trowbridge never entered his name for the nationals until this year, despite the fact that he has been one of the outstanding amateurs.

Wilfred Crossley Norfolk came through again duplicating his feat of last year, as of course did Guilford and Blaney while the other Bay Stater is Win Hersey Wellesley, who did not make the grade last season.

Although Connecticut qualified only Bobby Grant Charlie Clare and "Pippy" Warner it will be represented by a trio of exceptionally fine players

Fish and Game

—By WIN BROOKS—

"For he," said The Horgan—sotto voice imposed on the taut silence of suspense—"was hell on the long dart!"

The harpooneer's right arm came back and high, and drove suddenly forward and down. The long lance sped over the port bow of the Sea Loafer. And we were fast to a whale!

It might have been Tashtego standing there in the bow of a whale boat, but it was Henry Oakes at the stem of Clarence W. Birdseye's 15-ton yacht. It might have been the Indian ocean but it was good old Massachusetts Bay. It might have been old Moby Dick himself who received that dart of Swedish iron in a spurt of blood behind the left fin, but it was a three-quarter ton blackfish of the small-toothed whale genus, globicephala.

WHALING THRILLS ENJOYED

Some of the thrills that attended the old whaling quest and all of the luxuries which were notably absent from it were enjoyed last Sunday by a group of Massachusetts sportsmen, including your faithful chronicler, who were guests of the Gloucester big-game sportsman Birdseye abroad his Loafer.

"HELL ON TH' LONG DART!"

In addition to the host, the calling of the roll disclosed the presence of Lieut. Comdr. E. Dorsey Foster, U. S. N., Bob Gannett, Fred Pape, Chief Charles S. Knight of the Metropolitan district survey, Warden Tony Shea, Alec Martell, Robert Bray and the following charter members of the Helen Winter Club; Bill Thatcher, Tom Horgan, Eric A. Olsen, John F. Brennan and Paul Whelton.

HARPOON READIED

Somewhere along the east ridge of the Middle Bank, Oakes' sharp eyes picked up the roll of a blackfish a mile distant and Birdseye swung the helm hard down while we took a course to intercept him. The sea was lazy flat and soon we discerned a whole school of the monsters traveling leisurely eastward, apparently following a school of mackerel.

The rope-secured iron was fitted on the 20-foot pole and the cask buoy, around which 85 fathoms of quarter-inch rope was coiled, was carried forward by Martell. Oakes took his place in the bow with the harpoon ready and we began to stalk the blackfish school.

Several times, coming both upwind and downwind with the motors idling we approached almost close enough, only to have the giants up-flukes and sound, not to reappear for several minutes. Finally we drifted into the very center of the spot where the school had last sounded and three, reappearing, came quartering across our starboard bow.

One sounded, the others came on, dipping under one minute, coming up the next, their stentorious breathing audible for a long distance. Oakes waited and picked his fish.

Almost, it seemed, he waited too long and would miss. The whale dipped and rolled under. The harpoon sped and Martell heaved the buoy overside.

WHALE TOWS YACHT

The rope unrolled slowly from the keg, then a little faster. Soon it was speeding across the bay. We picked up the harpoon shaft and five minutes after the fish was struck had the keg inboard and with a turn around the bow post were under tow.

The motor was killed and we went for a Nantucket sleigh ride, always with enough speed to hold steerage way.

For a little more than an hour, a worried whale, pouring a stream of claret that resulted in the school gathering around him, fought for his freedom while inch by inch the rope was taken in. Now he was on the surface and now he was sounding but always he was closer to being a dead whale.

ROPE SNAPS!

He was within 30 feet of the boat and a tired fish when it happened! He sounded, the Sea Loafer rode up on the crest of a swell and dropping down left some slack in the rope. The yacht rose sharply on another swell, the suddenly tautened rope snapped, and the whale was gone. We saw him later still pouring blood, but apparently little the worse for his experience.

Other highlights of an extremely interesting voyage were the capture of a 60-pound monkfish or goosefish, which had a whole 15-pound cod in its stomach, the sighting of a small school of tuna which refused lures and the catching by Horgan, of one enormous cod's head. He started the big cod up from 60 fathoms and half-way to the surface a shark chose it for lunch, slicing it cleanly through behind the gills.

HORSE SHOW AT COHASSET RING TODAY

What promises to be the most brilliant Cohasset Horse Show in history opens today at the ring on the South Shore estate of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft. Chief interest is centered in the events for children's horsemanship, carded tomorrow.

Seventeen youngsters will be in the class for riders 12 to 16 years of age, and 14 in the class for riders under 12 years of age.

Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Jr., master of the Dedham hunt, will judge the 31 youngsters.

So What?

—By JOE MOONEY—

One thing the Olympics furnished the sports banquet—a fine mess of the Paavo Nurmi case, dished up by the International Federation.

It's a fine stew, but will the A. A. U. eat it?

The whole issue is as cloudy as boiled over coffee. And as mysterious as boarding house hash.

Professionalism is the bone of contention, so they're treating the Finn like Finnan Haddie.

And with about as much relish.

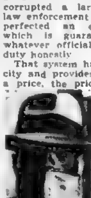
SPIES FOR RUM GANGS BLOCK DRY FORCES

BY THE MASKED REPORTER

Copyright, 1932, by Boston Evening American. All Rights Reserved

Providence, R. I., Aug. 17—The highly organized and efficient rum gangs of this state have not only corrupted a large number of its law enforcement officers but have perfected an espionage system which is guaranteed to outwit whatever official tries to do his duty honestly.

That system has its base in this city and provides the "tip-off" for a price, the price being that the speakeasy owners and bootleggers buy their goods from the prominent Newport man who has never soiled his hands in actual contact with the stuff.



Masked Reporter

I took advantage of an opportunity to study the system in all its details and was accompanied through its various stages by one once in the racket.

He told me of the power wielded by the Newport man, whom I shall describe only as "K" because he has never been convicted. "K" is too smart for that and he has the wealth to hire men at fair wages to carry on his rackets and "take the rap" when a pinch

TIPSTERS PAID WELL

First let us deal briefly with the heart of the great "tip-off" system in Washington, the nation's capital. Reports from every section of the country reach the office of Amos Woodcock, head of all Federal dry agents. There's been a leak in Woodcock's office for a long, long time. When Federal agents report they are watching a big plant or large operator the word is immediately flashed back to the suspect via the Washington leak.

I happen to know that the Washington office has spent several years trying to patch up the leaks. Clerks and telephone operators have been fired when found transmitting secret government information to the rum bosses who paid them well.

But the system goes on. New spies are hired to take the places of those who fall by the wayside. And the system has plenty to spend. As this story is entirely a local one let us dispense with the Washington angle and get on to the Federal Court in Exchange pl., Providence.

Let us imagine that a new federal agent has been assigned to this area.

The appointment is recorded with the Washington office. If he is a veteran and transferred to this area his transfer is also recorded at Washington.

The word is passed on to the Providence base by the tip-off and the boss of the local system assigns a spy to "make him," as the boys say.

The spy or "tail" first watches the office of the local dry agents. If he is unsuccessful in "making" the new man there he saunters over to Federal Court and eventually the new man steps on the witness stand to prosecute a liquor law violator.

Then comes a general review. The "tails" pass the word along and before a new man is in the territory two weeks he is marked by every large speakeasy owner and rum-runner that's in right.

So far as the Rhode Island area is concerned, the espionage system does not end there. A Newport branch must be taken care of and "K" arranges that with the finesse of an army general.

CARS SPOTTED

He stations a "tail" at Stone Bridge and another at Mount Hope Bridge, the only means of reaching Newport via Providence by automobile. When a car bearing federal agents crosses the Mount Hope Bridge it is not taxed 60 cents as other cars. The agent in charge shows his voucher and a "tail" watching the spots knows at once that the "Feds" are on the way to Newport or some nearby section. The news is passed along to "K" headquarters in Newport and from there relayed to all the speakeasies under his protection.

AGENTS CHECK LIQUOR STORIES

A check-up of "leads" in liquor racketeering given by the Masked Reporter of the Boston Evening American is being made by undercover agents of the prohibition forces from Washington, it was learned today.

It is known that copies of the Boston Evening American containing accounts of "racketeering" uncovered by the Masked Reporter were forwarded to Washington for analysis.

The exposures of rum-running and kindred evils daily in the Boston Evening American is the one topic of conversation of dry agents at the Franklin st. office.

South Shore resorts, including road houses and speakeasies at Nantasket, are under surveillance of the undercover men, who are reported to be working independently of the agents over whihch the Rev. Jonathan S. Lewis, prohibition administrator for Massachusetts, exercises general supervision.

The greatest secrecy is attached to the activities of undercover men in the work of ferreting out the "liquor mobs" waxing wealthy on rum-running down the Cape.

TWO HOURS TO RUSSIA ---NO PASSPORT--- NO LUCK

By GILBERT SELDES

Without warning, I found myself two hours away from Russia—airplane time, to be sure, but terrifyingly near, and was suddenly aware of a profound longing to go there. The Finnish plane on which I had crossed from Stockholm to Helsingfors was just descending when I caught sight of the time-table in an advertising folder, saw the names of Reval and Leningrad and knew that if I had had any foresight I might have gone on. But all travel in Europe, before the present excursion, had seemed to me difficult and wearisome, consuming days and nights. I hadn't reckoned on the annihilation of time which flying so smoothly accomplishes, so when we descended I stood at the airdrome looking, through torrents of rain, in the direction I hoped meant Russia. That was as far as I got.

GILBERT SELDES

But the acuteness of my own desire to enter Russia showed me how exciting that country is, how the thoughts of the world are focused on Russia whenever they can detach themselves from private troubles. A few days later I started for home, joining several hundred Americans who had been making a tour of the northern countries on the Kungsholm. They had seen oddities and wonders and beauties, had visited out-of-the-way ports and stood on glaciers and observed the midnight sun; yet what had moved them most was four days in Russia. Four days meant a tourist's visit to Leningrad, a train ride to Moscow and a visit there; yet they talked of nothing else with the same vehemence. Few of them, I gather, had really liked Russia; they had seen squalor and dirt; they couldn't, in four days, have experienced the fierce joy of those Russians who think they are creating a new world. Yet they were excited, deeply moved, perturbed, shaken out of the routine of touring and buying souvenirs.

Fear Life in a New World

It isn't that Russia is mysterious [illegible] try has been so well advertised in the past [illegible] fended. It has had its movies and its propaganda [illegible] we [illegible] the Soviets want us to know [illegible] that knowledge one thing is certain: that Russia is making an experiment just at the moment when all other countries are [illegible] the tried and failing methods of the past. [illegible] perhaps good finance but [illegible] Russia struggles along with a currency which [illegible] own borders, and will not allow foreigners to [illegible] mad but it isn't, at least, dead. France speaks of a renewal of the Entente; it is literally the diplomacy of death. Russia [illegible] and challenges its enemies to disarm.

The stroke of fortune for the Soviet Republics came when capitalism ceased to prosper. We can't, with a straight face, [illegible] Sovietism because Russians are starving; it is even hard to attack it as a system of servile labor when free men to the number of millions cannot find work. The whole argument against Communism has to be reworked, and the Russians are justified in arguing as we try to rework it without reforming our own system.

The less I think of Communism as a world system or as a system under which I would be happy, the more [illegible] I am for its success in Russia. It constitutes there, a tremendous release of human energies, the sort of thing which came during the Renaissance and again after the French and American Revolutions.

Times of refreshing have arrived in the form of religious movements and in the form of political movements; [illegible] now as an economic movement. The form does not matter. The Russians think they are making the world over; to an extent they are actually making it over. And at a moment when the old world is thoroughly and hopelessly bad.

Russia Leaves Americans Unimpressed

My fellow passengers are prosperous, middle-class Americans. Many of them are in the stage of the old anti-Red propaganda of [illegible] after the war. They think Russia is an outcast because its government came into power by violence. Also like good Americans of every class they are enthusiasts for sanitation, prompt arrivals of trains, good hospital service, soap and plumbing. They think Russia ought to do something about these things. They haven't seen the dam at Dnieprostroy and are only vaguely aware of the five-year plan; they have seen some of its grinding effects on the freedom of [illegible]. They came out not anti-Russian, so much as frightened Americans. And not one of them has shown any regret. Those four days might have been spent in the sweet comfort of Stockholm or in the [illegible] fevers of Berlin or Paris, yet they are happy to have stood for a few days on the most alien soil in the world.

And I, standing on the soil of a republic which had once been part of Russia, am the one to have regrets. At most, I could have had a day or two, probably jostled in the streets, meeting no one I could talk to (since I was not on a conducted tour), learning nothing whatever of Russia itself. So I recognize my longing as pure romanticism. I suppose what I really want is to be able to say, "I have been in Russia," and to pretend that merely by being there I had assisted in the most astounding event of our time. If I could believe that a similar event would happen in America, I might not be so disappointed; to be on either side of a great revolution is magnificent, if you have faith and are willing to do something about your faith. It is the fear that America will come through its difficulties in an ignoble way that makes one think so passionately of the Russians who may not have come through theirs, but have, at least, made a noble attempt.

Helene Madison, on Hearst Ranch, Puts Fish to Shame

Hearst Ranch, San Simeon, Cal., Aug. 17—The early morning solitude of La Cuesta Encantada was disturbed by a splashing in the beautiful swimming pool yesterday but investigation proved it to be Helene Madison taking her morning constitutional.

A guest at the ranch, the world's champion is relaxing after three months of strenuous training.

Gertie Goldfish, who has long been undisputed queen of the blue waters of the pool, sought solace under a lily leaf in utter mortification and envy as the Seattle girl glided and thrashed about in the sunshine.

Mr. Brisbane was struck by the perfect co-ordination and the ease with which Miss Madison propels her body through the water.

Eleanor Boardman and Carole Lombard compare the rhythm and beauty and poetry in motion in Miss Madison's strokes to Pavlowa's dancing.

A gallop over the hills with Arthur Brisbane in the morning, a game of tennis and another dip in the afternoon were also a part of the day's program for the Seattle champion.

She is expected in Los Angeles today for a conference with "Winnie" Sheehan of the Fox Film Corp. and later will return to Seattle for the great public reception which her friends are planning for the Olympic's outstanding star.

Rome, Aug. 17—"America does not need a Mussolini!"

Premier Mussolini so declared today in an exclusive interview with Universal Service.

The Italian dictator apparently excluded the United States, for several decades at least, from his fiery pronunciamento of a week ago, in which he asserted that the 20th century is the age of Fascism, with the state replacing the era of individualism which came into being with the 19th century.

RIOTERS DEFY SPEED COURTS

Berlin, Aug. 1[illegible] (AP)—Germany's new speed courts authorized by the government to provide swift retribution for rioters smashed at violence today but [illegible] rioting continued.

A farm woman and two farmers were sentenced at I[illegible] to three years imprisonment for heckling at a meeting of Hitler's National Socialists. At Brieg the court was forced to adjourn because of the heat, after hearing conflicting statements about a street fight between Nazis and Republicans.

Two Republicans at Rostock were sentenced to 19 months in jail for beating a Nazi.

In the meantime, two persons were wounded by police in a Communist demonstration here which was one of a series of such affairs throughout the night. Scattered clashes kept the police on the run in Berlin.

THIS IS LIFE

WHILE EAST SQUABBLES OVER SLUMP, WEST PUTS ON "BRAIN DERBY"

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IN SPITE of the depression the Westerners do not seem to have lost their git-up-and-git. Nor do they seem to be afraid to organize something big and to spend a little money, where it will do the most good. With the East one long and disgraceful quarrel between the folks who think that way to spend money is to cut down on all the latest improvements of education and the school teachers who seem to think that they are the one class in the community that ought to be exempted from salary cuts and contributions, the West goes blithely ahead doing something constructive.

PROF. ROGERS

Briefly, the University of Iowa plans to test out the principle of competitive scholarship in the whole state. The headline writer calls it a "brain derby," but what a headline writer calls anything does not matter. His job is to get something striking into a few letters.

From the despatch I read, there are some 300 high schools in Iowa, in which the pupils will compete. Between 50,000 and 60,000 pupils—the story contradicted itself on this point—in these 300 high schools will compete in six fields of instruction, ranging from debating to art, seeking the 1100 qualifying places for the finals.

Important as a Competition

That was all the despatch said in the paper I saw. Being an educational matter it didn't rate any more space than that in a Boston newspaper. It would be very interesting to know what will happen to the winners in the event. Or what will be done even for the 1100 who qualify for the final round

The idea is important because it means that at last the sense of the value of competition and elimination in scholarship has penetrated the skulls of some of our public school educators. One of the prize imbecilities of our modern educational psychology is the idea there must be no competition in democratic education and no rewards given for good work. Some experts even believe that it is wrong to give grades, because it makes the weak student discouraged. Some teachers believe in giving artificially padded grades, just to encourage the backward child. There is a feeling that the poor pupil should not be eliminated for incompetence, should not even be held back—because that gives him an inferiority complex

Out West somewhere, as I have mentioned elsewhere, a suit was brought in the courts to prevent a state college from firing a student because he had no brains and could do no work. Our own high schools are full of boys and girls who are graduating only by the grace of God and a too lenient grading standard The very teachers who are promoting them know that they ought to be out in the world doing such modest work as their very slender abilities fit them for.

Publicity Is Vital Need

The basis of the English school system is competition and scholarships. The lower schools prepare boys and girls to win scholarships in the preparatory schools. The preparatory schools train their pupils to win scholarships in the universities. A school is judged by its success in winning competitive scholarships, just as a college is judged by its success in winning university prizes and places. The consistent scholarship winner, from the lower schools to the A. B. degree, is a marked man, pretty sure to step into a good job and, even, into political preferment if he wishes it. The losers find their own level, like water.

I should like to see the University of Iowa carry this thing through. The first necessity is pitiless publicity. Every school should have its record published. The schools turning out pupils of generally low calibre should lose their right to send pupils to the state university and should be thoroughly reorganized. The schools that consistently turn out pupils of high calibre should become the school in the state to which the best pupils are sent, a kind of nursery for the intellectual elite, a genuine junior college.

Then the standing of the pupils should be published, by school, by town, by county. Those who could not reach a certain low percentage of the total gradings—say 65 per cent—should be forbidden to attend college. It might take an act of the legislature to do that, but it would be worth the effort. The mediocre gradings—from 65 to 85—should be allowed to enter the state university. And the students above 85 should not be allowed to enter the state university at all but should be sent East to college at public expense.

Glory for the Winners

Such a procedure would kill several birds with one stone. It would eliminate the incompetent high school. It would detour the incapable student into practical fields more fitted for his slender talents. And it would recognize practically and start upon his career the member of the intellectual minority worth educating for a professional life. But above all it would give notice to the American democracy that the State of Iowa recognizes the value of the method of competition and elimination in education. It recognizes, too, that in education the advantage of the state is of more lasting importance than the advantage of the individual.

It is too much to hope that anything so beautiful and intelligent will ever come out of the Iowa experiment. Probably it will be made the basis for a noisy drive towards community and sectional patriotism. The winning students will be ballyhooed and feted and photographed, as if they were prize hogs or the "healthiest" youngsters in the 4H contests. The winner will be sent to Washington for a perfunctory handshake with the President.

But winners and losers alike, the bars will be let down and all will be turned into the green grass of the State U. And there will be no publicity, no publication of statistics, because such publication will hurt the vested interests of state boards, local boards, superintendents, teacher's associations and all the paraphernalia and organization which is our American substitute for education. But it is a gorgeous stunt!—and the lucky people who thought of it will have fat jobs at good salaries for themselves and their friends, and the department of education of the University of Iowa will get a big reputation—everywhere except in the sober and responsible and efficient East.

But wouldn't some of those state-wide statistics make juicy reading.

HULL RELIEF HEAD SCORES LYNN DIET

Mayor Charges Critics Clamor for Tax Cuts

HULL OFFICIAL SAYS LYNN DIET IS OUTRAGEOUS

Chairman Reddie Declares at Least $10 a Week Is Necessary for Needy

Characterizing the Lynn plan of food rationing to welfare recipients at a cost of $1.20 per week per person as "outrageous," Chairman William W. Reddie of the Hull welfare board declared today that "any person or family without resources needs at least $10 a week aid to live."

In Hull, Chairman Reddie said, needy families receive from $10 to $15 a week, depending on conditions found in the welfare board's investigation, and the board allows $25 a month for rent in addition, where it is necessary

NOBODY IN WANT

The allowance is both in the form of cash orders and store orders

"The town of Hull has been complimented by the State for the manner in which it is handling its welfare cases," said Reddie.

"When a case comes in, it is given to Miss Alice Sweeney, a college girl with settlement work experience, for investigation, or if it is a case which presents difficulties, it is given to State Representative John Q. Knowles to investigate.

$25 EXTRA FOR RENT

"According to conditions, the family is then allotted from $10 to $15 a week, with a monthly allowance of $25 if necessary, and in cases where the head of the house is unemployed an attempt is made to furnish him with work

"Any family, even the smallest, needs at least $10 a week on which to live, and the idea of giving a person only the equivalent of $1.20 a week, as in Lynn, is outrageous. It is impossible for anybody to live on that amount of money."

BOSTON BOARD OF ASSESSORS DEFENDED

50 P. C. of Municipal Research Directorate Cited in an Attack by Curley

Fifty per cent of the directorate of the Boston municipal research bureau are chronic applicants for reduced assessments on their properties, and one member in particular, having been refused reductions, first of 10 and then of 5 per cent, on property that is on a paying basis, sought to secure a reduction of 3 per cent, Mayor Curley stated today.

These statements were contained in another broadside directed at the bureau and are a continuation of the quarrel which began recently when members of the organization attacked the Mayor

TARRANT P. KING NAMED

"I note the name of Tarrant P. King among the directors of the Boston Municipal Research Bureau," the Mayor said.

"Mr. King within the past week waited upon me to secure a reduction in the assessment upon the properties controlled by him and known as the King Terminal. I immediately sent for the Board of Assessors, requesting them to sit down with Mr. King

"This has been the policy at all times and I know no occasion for a change in the same. If my memory serves me right, Mr. King requested a 10 per cent reduction. I asked the assessors if they considered he was entitled to it and they stated in their opinion he was not as he had reductions in 1929-30 and in 1931.

"AGREED TO 3 PER CENT"

"Mr. King then said he would be satisfied with five per cent and when the assessors informed him that his property was on a paying basis and that he was not entitled to any he was even willing to accept a three per cent reduction.

"The selfish group of raiders of assessed valuations in Boston, headed by Alexander Whiteside, may protest until the end of time that they are actuated by a spirit of altruism and animated solely by the desire to conserve the standing of the city, but just so long as Mr. Whiteside and his group continue as counsel for a large proportion of the cases pending before the assessors and the tax appeal board and involving many millions of dollars, and just so long as Mr. Whiteside continues to invite business upon mortgages held by the Atlantic National Bank or other interests, just so long will it be unnecessary for me or any other individual to present evidence for the purpose of proving his motives."

MAN OVERCOME IN SHIP FIRE

Capt. Victor Ansell of South Boston was overcome while fighting an engine room fire on board the 48-foot cabin cruiser Felicia anchored off City Point

Capt Ansell was rescued by coast guardsmen and taken to the office of Dr. Charles E. Mackey, Broadway, South Boston, co-owner of the cruiser

The fire started from a backfire and quickly spread through the oil-soaked engine room. Capt. Frank Colebrook of the City Point Coast Guard station ordered the cruiser towed to the public landing where firemen extinguished the blaze

The cruiser, valued at $18,000, is jointly owned by Dr Mackey, a school committeeman, and Joseph Castanaro of Mattapan Damage was estimated at $500

She was rescued some time later by her mother, who said Mary had wandered off

STATE PROBES REVERE BLAST

State authorities joined Revere police and fire department officials today in a probe of the explosion in the home of Louis DeLuca on Mountain ave., which killed DeLuca, his wife and two children

Fluid found in the kitchen was delivered to the state chemist for analysis to determine if it caused the blast. The fluid evidently is turpentine and it is believed it was being heated

Unexplained aspects of the tragedy included the question as to why the kitchen was practically undamaged when four lives were snuffed out

While officials were examining the scene of the tragedy, a neighbor ran up to them to explain the whole thing, saying

"A ten-cent bottle of turpentine did it all."

A third child of the family, Carmelia DeLuca, 5, was visiting at the home of an aunt, a short distance away, when the explosion occurred

DE LUCA, Mrs. Ida, 24.
DE LUCA, Dorothy, 4.
DE LUCA, Vincent, 2½.

Police say the family had been aided for two weeks by the welfare board. The father was an unemployed shoe worker. He had been doing municipal work two days a week

ACTRESS WIFE QUITS COTTING

FOOT TRAFFIC LIGHTS O. K.'D

Two girls, Geraldine Skelley and Mildred Jenkins, stenographers in the office of Traffic Commissioner Conry, walked twice across the intersection at Boylston st. and Massachusetts ave., last week, to see if the pedestrian lights were left on for a sufficient length of time.

Many of the watching throng volunteered opinions that the girls didn't make the Boylston st crossing comfortably before the lights changed.

Today, Traffic Engineer Hurley, who conducted the tests, asserted that the girls did make it and said that on the trip which ended in a mad leap for the sidewalk, the girls had slowed down at request of photographers who wished to make pictures.

However, with regard to whether the girls made the passage comfortably and conveniently, no one has thought to ask the Misses Geraldine Skelley and Mildred Jenkins—the principals in the test.

Boys Recover Body of Chum After Police Quit Search

The loyalty of two grief-stricken chums who watched vain attempts by police to find the body of Walter Farren 18-year-old Charlestown High School graduate, resulted in its recovery today from the Mystic river.

All Friday afternoon and all day Saturday, Tony Melino, of 40 Chestnut st., Charlestown, and James Magna, of 21 Bunker Hill st., Charlestown, sat with their grief on the river bank and hoped that the police, with the best in grappling equipment, would recover the body

But the police did not—and so the boys set to work. With boathooks, light anchors and other makeshift articles they improvised grappling irons and began to search the river bottom where Farren went to his death on Friday when he reached for a floating bottle and the flat-bottomed boat capsized

The chums grappled all day Sunday, all day Monday, all day yesterday and they were back at it for several hours today when their improvised irons picked up the body

If You Want Liquor Cheap, Register, Says Curley

Persons interested in the purchase of good liquor at reasonable prices, and those who have been protesting against crime waves, had better get on the voting list, Mayor Curley said today.

"The election department discloses the fact that the total number of persons registered as voters to date is 247,000," the Mayor said. "The total registration for the last presidential election was 299,000, so that it is necessary that more than 50,000 women and men register if the voting list for 1932 is to be as large as that of 1928.

"To persons who have been protesting against crime waves and the inability to get good liquor at a reasonable price this information may be of value, for neither protest nor thirst will mean anything unless their names are on the registered list.

"Several hundred persons desirous of a change in national affairs have already signified their intention to change their party enrollment and to those who are still possessed of that desire I beg to direct their attention to the fact that the last day for changing party enrollment is August 20."

The mayor stated that from July 1 to date 11,500 have registered.

Blondie Is Blaming Herself for Row

"I'M BORING YOU . . ." said Blondie, glancing at her watch.

"No—you could never bore me . . . situations bore me, though. I'm getting to distrust everyone and everything — I think it must be age . . ."

"You look very well!"

"So do you . . . It's not fair for one person to have so much charm —what does it feel like to be a great success?"

"Success!"

"Miss McClune wears this—she smokes that . . . I'm always reading about you."

"You're laughing at me, really!"

"You wouldn't have me cry over you, would you?"

"You couldn't cry if you tried—over anyone!"

"You mean I'm not sincere? . . . I was sincere with you . . ." Larry paused for an answer, but Blondie was silent. ". . . and you know it . . ." he added.

"And now?"

"Well—now is another day, isn't it?"

"Yes, funny, isn't it?"

"Very funny—that's why I laugh . . ." and the room echoed with his mocking laughter.

"She'll be a lucky woman—who really gets you seriously."

"The lady who did get me seriously—did turn out to be very lucky . . ." and Larry looked around the luxurious room again.

"Well, if this place isn't a palace of luck in a circus, I guess I don't know what it is—walk up, boys and girls, and take your chances for the big life—whoopee!"

BLONDIE WAS TREMBLING

Blondie was trembling now as she watched Larry and listened to his bitter tirade against her. Oh, she thought, if she could only put her arms around him and beg him to take her out of all this.

They were interrupted by the ringing of the door bell.

"Who is it?" asked Larry

"Lurline."

"Why?" asked Larry, seriously

"Wait!"

"No—why?"

"Please — for me," pleaded Blondie.

"Hello, Larry," she said, surprised

"Hello," replied Larry, coldly.

"Hello, Lurline!" greeted Blondie.

"Hello! — it's like old home week!" said Lurline.

"Sit down, Lurline—Larry has to hurry."

"Now that I'm here—it's a wonder he doesn't dive right through the window . . ."

"I'm saving that until the market goes right down!"

"Tea, Lurline—or a drink?"

"What do you think?"

"Champagne!" Blondie said, turning to the butler

"When I received your message to 'come at once' I was afraid you were sick—what's it all about?"

"I've been worried;" said Blondie.

"You look it," sarcastically from Lurline, as she glanced around the room.

CAUSE OF TROUBLE

"I feel that I was the cause of you and Larry breaking up . . ." Blondie said, seriously.

"Well—" Lurline started to interrupt.

"This is the first time I've spoken to either of you since that night on the yacht . . . and I wondered if I couldn't be the means of bringing you together again . . . You know you care for Larry, Lurline, and I'm sure Larry cares for you . . ."

Larry rose and started to walk away. But Lurline was affected by what Blondie had said

"I don't know what I ever did to Larry to make him change," Lurline said simply.

"What was it, Larry?" asked Blondie.

"What would you like me to say?" Larry retorted.

"I'd like you to say that you'll make up with Lurline"

"Sorry—we always understood each other perfectly."

"Until you walked out, we did!" said Lurline

"I feel that I . . ." Blondie started again, but Larry cut her short.

"We all make mistakes—I thought it was fun when it started, but I began to find out how sordid and empty this sort of thing is."

"Thank you very much," said Lurline, grandly, more hurt than she cared to admit.

"I'm not trying to be unkind . . but don't you realize it's just as bad for the man as the woman? She's not the only one who loses

ALLEN GILLIS · LUCIO MANGANORO · ANTHONY M. MANGANORO · FLORENCE DWYER · ANGELO MANGANORO · JOSEPH MANGANORO · MRS. MARIE MANGANORO

Here are the seven most severely injured victims of a collision between two sedans in Columbia rd., near Buttonwood st., Dorchester, early today. James F. Comerford, 22, of Highland st., Roxbury, was also hurt, but was able to return to his home. Police said Gillis, who lives in Herman st., Roxbury, and Miss Dwyer of Webster ave., Somerville, were passengers in a car driven by Comerford when it collided with the auto of Joseph Manganoro of Roach st., Dorchester. Manganoro, his wife and two children, Angelo, 8, and Lucio, 7, and his brother, Anthony M. Manganoro, were injured. All seven victims were taken to the City Hospital by passing autoists. 2300 Set State Record in Races for Votes

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

The state's biggest scramble for political office got underway today with more than 2300 candidates in the field for nominations by the two major parties

Finishing their count early this morning Secretary of State Cook and his assistants found 2133 Republican and Democratic candidates, exclusive of aspirants for places on town and ward committees and the delegations to the state conventions.

There are 959 Republicans and 1174 Democrats in the field. The total is more than 1000 above that in the 1928 campaign

Democrats are fighting for nominations in districts which they previously let go by default—districts which have always been preponderently Republican.

Every Democratic candidate from Governor Ely down on the state ticket has a contest, although Frank J. Harney of Lynn, who is running against the Governor, will create no interest outside of the vote that his candidacy will attract

The only Democrats running for renomination who have no contests on their hands are Congressmen William P. Connery of Lynn and William J. Granfield of Longmeadow and Rep. Edward J. Kelley of Worcester

Lieut. Gov. Youngman in his fight for the Republican nomination, is opposed by Frank A. Goodwin, E. Mark Sullivan, former corporation counsel Walter E. Brownell of Boston. The entrance of Brownell, an attorney into the fray took from Goodwin the first place on the ballot

Aside from the four-cornered G. O. P. governorship fight, interest of the politicians will center on the contest for state treasurer where Fred J. Burrell, former treasurer, of Medford, has entered against Francis Prescott of Grafton and Senator Max Ulin of Boston.

Eight Democrats headed by Edward P. Barry, former lieutenant-governor, are fighting it out for the lieutenant-governorship nomination

They are David J. Brickley of Boston, Raymond A. Fitzgerald of Cambridge, William I. Hennessey of Dorchester, City Councillor Francis E. Kelly, John E Malley, former Internal Revenue collector; Mayor O'Neill of Everett and Atty. John E. Swift of Milford.

12 SEEK COOK'S POST

There are 12 Democrats seeking the honor of opposing Secretary Cook in November The Democratic State Auditor, Francis X. Hurley of Cambridge, has four opponents

State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, whose administration has been widely commended, has only one opponent. He is Edmond L. Ford of Cambridge, Hurley's home city

There are six Democrats entered for the nomination for attorney-general The incumbent, Joseph E. Warner has no contest in the Republican primary

Republican office holders, who in addition to Warner, have no contests are Secretary Cook, and Congressmen Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge, Frank H. Foss of Fitchburg, Pehr G. Holmes of Worcester, Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Attleboro and Charles L. Gifford of Barnstable

LUCE FACES BATTLE

Congressman Robert Luce, one of the three congressmen who voted against changing the liquor laws, after the state went on record for repeal, faces a hard fight for renomination. He has three opponents, Ralph W. Robart of Cambridge, Jacob Wasserman of Newton and William H. Murphy of Brookline. Robart, director of the State Division on the Necessaries of Life, is probably the best known Robart has been active in politics for several years in his own city, where he ran for mayor.

Alonzo B. Cook, former state auditor, and his brother Washington, a former member of the Governor's council, again seek political honors. Alonzo is out for the Republican nomination for auditor while Washington seeks to displace Congressman Tinkham

Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the Senate, and Chester I. Camphel, of the Governors Council, seek the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

KILL 'EM ALL

COCKROACHES
AND WATER BUGS
they are more deadly than
RATTLESNAKES

Cockroaches carry germs of disease and filth from cellars and sewers to the pantry shelves and food containers.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GET RID OF THEM

Liquids will kill only about 10%. Poison powders will do about the same.

There is only one sure and safe way to entirely rid the house of these pests. Roaches are night feeding bugs. They don't appear until late and then the entire family turns out for its daily meal. Feed them something they like better than ordinary food, something that is non-poisonous and does not drive them back into the walls.

FIRED CLEANER FIGHTS FOR 5-CT. BEER

Edmund J (Push 'Em Up) Connor's dark suspenders went snap against his lavender shirt—snap on oneside and then snap on the other

"And then," said he, with relish, "I'll start slapping the taxes on Harvard and pulling down some of those big monuments of heroes nobody ever heard of."

His right thumb snapped his right brace down on his colorful shirting. "Snap," it said

"And when I'm elected representative," he continued, "and get my push cart back again—my push cart and my broom—there's going to be a lot of folks realize they can't toss Edmund J. Connor, Sr., around"

Connor, who ceased pushing 'em up recently when Cambridge forcefully pensioned him as a white-wings and seized his street cleaning outfit, had just returned from his regular morning visit to the street department in Cambridge City Hall

"Edmund J. Connor, Sr. reporting for work," he had announced, according to custom.

A SIZZLER, HE SAYS

"But you're retired, Mr. Connor."

"I don't want to be retired. I want my cart and broom. The streets are a mess."

"But you ARE pensioned, Mr. Connor."

He stood now, in the living room of his home at 1 Hampshire ct., Cambridge, tucked a pencil behind his right ear and inserted his thumbs between braces and shirt "Snap," said the suspenders

"I'm mapping out my campaign, boys, and it's not half finished, but what's done sure sizzles."

His right arm made a long sweeping motion from back to front he might have been pushing em up, but he was only reaching for a paper on a table.

"In the first place, when I'm elected representative, the first thing I'm going to do is to see if something can't be done about tossing a few taxes in the way of Cambridge colleges that don't pay any."

"FEEBLE-MINDED"

The lavender shirt puffed as the braces snapped

"Harvard," said he, "and Radcliffe and Technology and a few more of those high and mighty schools will have to pay taxes when I'm representative.

"It's about time those burgs were made to come across with some money for taking up so much space. Harvard ought to pay taxes on the grounds that it houses vandals who have caused more damage than the invasion of an army.

"Why," continued the deposed masseur of streets actually aghast, "they call them collegians, but they're feeble-minded numbskulls! The last time those clowns went on a rampage they endangered the lives and safety of hundreds of persons. The next day it was called just a bit of 'boyish fun'"

He swung an imaginary broom in a vicious arc

"I wish I was there" he said "I'd have cracked my broom over a few heads."

HE'S FOR 5-CENT BEER

He took a drink of water

"What we need is a good 5-cent glass of beer. I'm for it And I'm for a five-day, six hour day week for city laborers and an increase in pay. When I'm up in the State House I'm not going to forget my old friends

The Cambridge City Council took official action in Connor's case [illegible] when it voted to request City Solicitor Thomas F. Sullivan for a ruling as to the proper authority on retirements of city employes who reach the age of 65

Councillor John W. Lyons introduced the order, saying he doubted Cambridge had any legal right to retire the men

Connor has had a number of radio and stage offers but he's too busy mapping out that campaign platform to think about them seriously.

'PUSH 'EM UP' CONNOR STARTS SIZZLING

"And when I'm elected representative and get my pushcart back again there's going to be a lot of folks realize they can't toss me around." Edmund J. Connor, Sr., is speaking from atop an overturned metal drum as he carries along his campaign for the House. Retired against his will as a street cleaner by the University City, he has cast his hat in the ring, snapped his suspenders against his lavender shirt and waded in. "And then," says 'Push 'Em Up' Edmund, "I'll start slapping the taxes on Harvard and pulling down some of those big monuments of heroes nobody ever heard of." (Staff photos.)

Duxbury Holds Flower Show This Week

The three-day flower show at old Duxbury, which is the fifth annual show given by the Community Garden Club of that town, promises to be an event of considerable importance to the South Shore colony.

This year several additional features are being arranged, one of these is an exhibition of a variety of wayside stands, or stalls, under the direction of Miss Amy A. Sacker. All the products characteristic of the Cape are to be attractively arranged, such as fruits, vegetables, jellies, mixed baskets, etc., in a manner which, while not being costly, will suggest possibilities to persons who regularly display such stalls. Miss Sacker is a clever designer and a well-known teacher in this line.

Many Prizes

Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 19, 20, 21 have been selected for the event, which is to be held in the Partridge Academy, Duxbury, in order to permit the week-end visitors to the Cape as well as the summer residents to look in on the show.

Mrs. H. Parker Whittington, the president of the Club, has arranged an interesting list of prizes for the competitors. She is personally donating a prize for the best exhibit. Mrs. Abbot Peterson of Brookline selected the judges who are Miss Mary Barnes of Hingham, Miss Mabel Benedict of Newport, Mrs. John Cunningham and Mrs. John Harwood, both of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Lawrence Oliver of Cohasset, Mrs. Warren Sherborne of Lexington, and Mrs. Delano Wright of Cohasset.

The judges will be entertained at luncheon on the opening day by Mrs. Robert T. Miller of Baltimore at her Duxbury estate.

On Committee

Many notable people of the district are actively assisting in this event. Mrs. Charles Pittenger is acting as secretary, Mrs. Harry Bradley and Mrs. Horace Soule are in charge of placing the exhibits. Mrs. Whittington, and Mrs. Leon Stetson and Mrs. Maynard Hutchinson form the prize committee. Miss [illegible] is [illegible] while Mrs. Robert T. Miller, Jr., is the chairman of the [illegible] and Mrs. Atherton Loring of the north [illegible]. Miss Elinor McAuliffe has charge of the special exhibits and Miss S[illegible] Moulton of the Children's section.

Provincetown Ball Friday

Many society artists have been thoroughly enjoying the season there this year with costume balls, masquerade [illegible] picnic parties, merry tea parties and a round of entertainment and light-heartedness unequaled in the past.

The season down [illegible] is nearing its close and the great event of the season is announced for Friday when the Provincetown Art Association stages its annual costume ball, for which the local town hall has been secured.

For the past 15 summers this ball has been given to mark the termination of the studies at the easels by the army of art students and established painters. For many weeks in advance work is begun on the costumes to be worn and one needs to go and witness this frolic to appreciate the cleverness and ingenuity expressed by all who attend. Prizes are awarded for the most artistic, most original and most grotesque make up.

Both the Lions Club and the Moose Club have staged preliminary costume balls recently which serve as a tryout for Friday's event and it is expected that nearly all the colony will join in.

Never Felt Younger, Says Darrow at 75

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP)—Says Clarence Darrow, 75-year-old lawyer:

"I've never been happier than now, nor felt younger. Age is a matter of the brain, not of the arteries. You're as young as your mind and 70 is as good a time as any to get a start in life."

Summer Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

REALLY, (CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?) THE CRISP, COLD evenings of autumn are upon us, with the golden-honeyed days of blue skies and warm sunshine, but that indefinable something in the air that suggests football games and soirees at the Copley-Plaza again. "Milady's" thoughts are turning to velours and that new delightful velvet-piquee that is being worn so much, and velvet and felt hats. Really, does it seem possible!

I'll tell you a little secret! Do you know who has been looking very smart this summer? Miss Elizabeth Timken of Hingham. She is a most charming young lady, a well-known member of the younger social set, dark hair and eyes, and ever so winsome and sweet. She wears her white pique short dress to great advantage. It is most attractive with her becomingly tanned limbs and just the crossed straps in back and the big pearl buttons.

MISS TIMKEN GAVE A Treasure Hunt last Saturday evening in which the young crowd of Cohasset and Hingham joined and a good time was had by all.

Partial to White

THEN THERE IS CHARMING Mrs. Robert Brewer. Have you noticed how delightful she looks in her large white shade hat and her stiffly-starched white pique sport frocks? She wears white almost entirely and thereby shows her wisdom.

AND THEN HINGHAM HAS Henrietta Clapp, the charming daughter of Mrs. Samuel G. Adams of Commonwealth ave., Boston. She always dresses well. Miss Clapp has brown eyes and dark hair and an interesting little smile that makes you want to see more of it. Besides, she has very nice dimples and she is clever. She looks ever so smart in her afternoon frock of dark blue silk with white polka dots—and a fetching little white collar about her face.

Most Delightful

THEN ON THE NORTH Shore we find Miss Natalie Folsom looking lovelier than ever. The summer activities have not "tired her all out." She looks as fresh as a daisy and very delightful in her little dotted-Swiss with the becoming white collar that gives the effect of the old-fashioned fischue.

MISS FOLSOM WEARS VERY short sleeves with this frock and it is ankle-length, falling in pleated folds from the stylishly high waist line. The costume is topped off as it were with a jaunty little tam hat that its owner wears most effectively cocked just ever so slightly over that left eye.

BOOKS • And a Number of Things •

By Charles Hanson Towne

A question that will never be settled is whether city lads have more fun than country boys. According to Henry Jay Case the latter have far better times. Remembering his own boyhood in Cayuga County, New York, he exclaims:

"What can compare to those red letter days when the circus came to town? There's only one place for a circus and that is under a tent.

"The thing to do was to see it come in—see the great pageant unfolding before one's astonished eyes. That meant waking up before dawn on this day of days.

"A boy I knew, George Severson, had a father who was a boss carpenter and had to get out early. He awakened George. All the rest of us, in our various homes, had strings tied to our toes with the ends hanging out of the window. Did George go about and yank the strings? Not only that, but he almost pulled our toes off!

"The next job was to get downstairs so quietly that we would not arouse the family; then hurry through the still dark streets to the freight yard, climb to the top of box cars on the siding to shiver and wait for the first sight of the long, painted train that came slowly and mysteriously out of the darkness to discharge, in the light of smoking kerosene lamps, cages of lions and tigers, shuffling camels and giraffes and odd-looking people from the sideshows. We could see beautiful ladies — yes, they looked beautiful to our childish eyes even at dawn! — and we were thrilled by the monkeys, chattering their little heads off, and then last amid the 'Oh's' and 'Ah's' the huge, ponderous elephants.

"To get this preliminary glimpse of a wonder world before it settled down to its serious business was something in the nature of a real achievement. We were Peeping Toms, and because we had no right to be where we were, drinking in the splendor, we enjoyed ourselves all the more.

"Next to the circus was the county fair, which was the big social, business and political setup of the year. Twenty-five years ago a county was not a county unless it could support one of these big annual shows.

"Of course, the principal sporting event at the fair was the trotting races, and every country boasted at least one good half-mile track where the long-tailed horses, hitched to wooden wheel sulkies, competed for cash prizes in half-mile heats. I can remember the names of some of those horses yet. Goldsmith's Maid, Dexter, Rarus, St. Julian, Maud S., Jay-Eye-See (a pacer), and all of them made their records before those high-wheel sulkies, to the loud cheers of the onlookers.

"Preceding the county fair came the firemen's conventions, to which came the volunteer hose truck hook-and-ladder companies from every city roundabout, each in dazzling uniforms, with its own cornet brass band and drum corps, led by a gorgeous six foot drum major throwing a wicked baton, for a grand parade in the morning and a program of running races and hose-laying events in the afternoon.

"Raymond Hitchcock, who afterward became famous as a comedian, worked in those days in Rosenbloom's shoe store at the corner of North and Genesee sts. in Auburn, and I can see him now in a swell red Prince Albert coat, skin-tight white breeches and tall black boots, a speaking trumpet filled with flowers, parading with the crack Protective Hose Company down South st., past the Seward mansion and park where the statue of Lincoln's Secretary of State stands with uplifted arm in the pose he assumed when he made his famous speech, 'There's a higher law than the Constitution'; or something like that. On Hallowe'en night we small boys had grand times hanging cabbages on that solemn statue, with little respect for all it represented.

"In 1891 our high school team played the first game of American Rugby in Auburn, on the old circus lot. The town police interfered at the first scrimmage—they had to show their authority, I suppose, and would not let the game continue until two boys, Charlie Blair and Blake Sears, leaders of the Ithaca high school team, persuaded the guardians of the law that everything was according to the book of rules and that we were not indulging in a free-for-all fight.

"Johnnie Green, a hack driver, drove a trained pair of black horses that drew Hook-and-Ladder No. 1; and when the town's fire bell rang, Johnnie's team, whatever his fare, swung right about and went at a mad gallop to headquarters to get the truck. Many a stranger in town, fresh off the train, found himself a part of this mad ride in Johnnie's hack, and has been left unceremoniously in the abandoned hack while Johnnie hitched onto the truck and hauled it to the fire."

The little guttersnipes of the city may not know such thrilling times as these, but they have their own fun in their own way. A big city street has its drama of fun, too, but it is not the intimate drama of the villages of yesterday.

Hour Glass Shape Now Under Ban

The modern athletic girl, unlike her sister of the past, has [illegible] and hips of almost equal measurements—and common sense in eating, in clothing and in discarding of the tight-lacing harness girls used to wear [illegible].

According to physicians and scientists, while the physical proportions of girls have changed, and decidedly for the better, in a health way—the [illegible] of the modern girl [illegible] that of her predecessors.

NO HOUR GLASS FIGURES

General athletics, deeper breathing [illegible] the waist and chest [illegible] laced [illegible] hour glass shape [illegible] dancing [illegible] [illegible] muscles [illegible].

As a result [illegible] shoulders are as wide as [illegible] her hips. Measures made at New Malibu Beach [illegible] proved this.

When Marion Cashman, 1? of Cushing ave., Dorchester, was measured, her shoulders and hips both ran the tape out to 34 inches and Marion allowed that her swimming and dancing [illegible] for the trimness of her figure, which is trim [illegible].

BEAUTY BANS SMOKES

Marion's sister, Anna, a year younger, measured 31 inches at the shoulders and 31 inches around the hips. She also is fond of dancing and swimming, and both sisters said they smoke in moderation.

Mary MacDonald, 18, of N[illegible] st., Dorchester, who [illegible] the Malibu Beach beauty [illegible] week, showed a shoulder measurement of 32 and a hip measurement of 30. Her favorite activities are swimming, horseback riding and skating. Mary does not smoke or drink.

Another Dorchester girl, Mary Regan, 1? of Adams st., measured 36 inches at the shoulders and 35 around the hips. [illegible] swimming, riding and skating, and she does not drink or smoke.

Dorothy Jordan, 18, [illegible] Adams st., measured 36 at the hips and shoulders and said she swims, skates and rides horses.

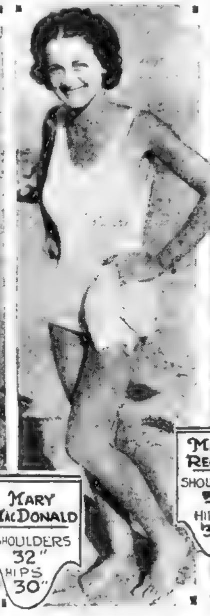
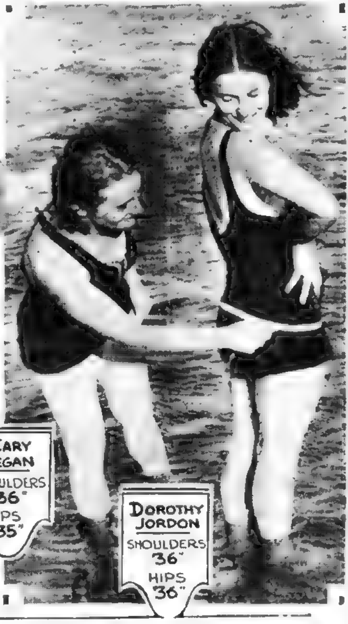
NO HOURGLASS FIGURES HERE

These comely Dorchester sisters are showing the camera man at New Malibu beach that the modern girl's hips and shoulders measure the same. Swimming and dancing are responsible for these trim figures, the girls declare.



BEAUTY PRIZE WINNER

Here's more proof in the perfect form of another Dorchester miss. She captured the beach beauty contest.



NOT MUCH DIFFERENCE IN THESE INCHES

Dorchester supplies two more for this one. Swimming, horseback riding and skating are their favorite sports that keep them in shape. They are star examples of how Miss 1932 has it over her old-time sister as a result of sensible dress. (Staff Photos.)

FAITHFUL CHEAT

By RUBY M. AYERS

A MOMENT AGO the nurse had said to Mark "If you go on at this rate we shall soon be losing you. You've made such wonderful strides during the last few days."

"I shall be glad enough to go," Mark answered with a little grimace. "I know it's only a fortnight since I came here, but it seems a lifetime to me."

"You mustn't go too quickly," she cautioned him as she went away. "You're not strong yet by any means, and too much excitement will be bad for you."

"I feel as if I could jump over the moon," Mark [illegible].

NOT QUITE TRUE

[illegible]

"At home?" Mark had asked eagerly, and Anderson had laughed.

"Well, not too far away. I am sending you to Italy for a time—we have an agency there, and I think you are just the man for the post."

[illegible] a man in a thousand, and it was all due to Sondra, but for her Anderson would never have been interested in him.

WISHED FOR HER

[illegible] anxiety. Supposing [illegible] dra from him.

"You must be patient," she always told him when he grumbled. "It won't be for long, and then you'll be free."

Sondra was wonderful [illegible] wife—what a beautiful word that [illegible] and devoted.

How he longed to be well and [illegible] seemed somewhat of a scarecrow.

With an effort he dragged himself [illegible] across the room to the dressing-table. Yes, he certainly looked a scarecrow; his face was thin and colorless and there were dark marks beneath his eyes.

He brushed a rueful hand across his hair. He supposed he would soon fill out and look respectable again. Sondra had often told him that he was handsome; now [illegible] compared with what he had been when she met him at the beat[illegible].

TIME DRAGGED

He w[illegible] not [illegible]

[illegible] ding after they told him the coast was sighted, but it had ended at last, and he had heard Sondra's voice in the passage outside the sick bay, where he had spent the voyage.

She had looked white and worried, poor darling. [illegible] Mark sobered and went heavily back to his chair.

[illegible] what was in the service of a wife. Another look at his watch: ten past three now; what could be keeping her? Then suddenly he remembered [illegible] how she had left her husband, and now that she had returned Mark was not surprised—marriage was like that, a sacred, binding tie.

[illegible] forgotten [illegible] great deal to talk about, for Anderson was to tell her about the job in Italy.

Sondra would be delighted, Mark hoped she would tell Anderson how grateful they both were.

[illegible] how much had happened [illegible]

NOT MUCH OF A CHAP

Not that Ben was much of a chap, but after all, she had chosen to marry him.

In many ways Mark was a simple fellow; of course he knew that women often married a man for his money, but he could not imagine Sondra's sister doing such a thing.

He knew very little of Flora, but she was the sister of the woman he adored, and that fact alone had placed her on an undeserved pedestal.

A quarter past three . . . it must be a very long lunch, he thought with a smile; he wondered where [illegible] somewhere good, he was sure. Anderson always did everything in slap-up style. It [illegible] a change for Sondra, [illegible] she had devoted to [illegible].

[illegible] a step outside the [illegible] he [illegible] up a face [illegible]

[illegible]

"Your mother is downstairs," she said. "Shall I bring her up?"

Mark sighed; his mother rather [illegible] at the back of his mind there was a half [illegible] that she was [illegible] yesterday she had admitted—not very readily—that she could find no fault with her daughter-in-law.

Perhaps mothers were always [illegible]

CARRIED ROSES

Mrs. Merriman [illegible] the room with her usual hurry and carrying a large bunch of roses.

"My darling boy, how are you?"

[illegible] "I'm better, thanks [illegible] don't stifle me."

"And where is Sondra?" She looked round the room as if expecting the girl to be hiding.

"She's lunching with Anderson," Mark said.

"With Mr. Anderson?" Mark's mother ceased to smile. "I am not sure that I like that man," she said.

Mark laughed. "Nonsense, he's my best friend."

"A disinterested friend, I hope," she said quietly.

"I imagine so," Mark said rather wearily. "I can't think of anything he can hope to get from me."

Mrs. Merriman seated herself beside him and unfastened her coat.

"There is something I want to tell you, Mark," she said.

"Well?" Mark had closed his eyes.

"I am not a scandal-monger, as you know," his mother went on firmly. "I detest scandal, but when it concerns one's own, so to speak, I consider it is time something was done to put an end to it."

[illegible] made no comment; he was [illegible]

ABOUT SONDRA

"It's about Sondra," Mrs. Merriman said hesitatingly.

"About . . . my wife." Mark was sitting up stiffly, his eyes dark and angry. "What do you mean?" he demanded.

"It is not I who have anything to say about her," Mrs. Merriman protested; she looked a little frightened. "But when I was at her rooms the other afternoon—she was out—that Miss Taylor called, and naturally enough we talked. I always rather liked Miss Taylor, but—"

"I don't want to hear any more. Beatrice is a woman I particularly distrust. I don't want to hear any more, I tell you," he said again fiercely.

"Very well," his mother sighed resignedly. "I only wanted you to know for your good. I'm not accusing Sondra of anything, but if these malicious stories are going round it's time they were stopped."

"You won't stop them by repeating them," Mark said almost brutally. And whatever stories are going round—if there are any—they're a pack of lies, you may take it from me. I'm surprised that you should trouble to listen. If Beatrice has anything to say about my wife she had better not let me hear it. A fine sort of friend she is!"

They would-n't have you think for the world that they go to the Au-to-mat be-cause two nick-els will get you cof-fee and bread and butter. You mus-n't let peo-ple think that on Broad-way, be-cause you can't get an-y-where on Broad-way un-less you put up a front. BIT HER LIP

"How do you know, Larry?" said Lurline, biting her lip.

"You never really loved me," Larry challenged. Blondie watched as Lurline turned away from his gaze.

"That's true, Larry . . ." Lurline admitted, facing him again.

"Did I ever say I loved you?"

"No! . . . You were honest—I'll [illegible]

"And I was honest with you—when I told you—" Larry stopped. "What does it matter now?—it's too late!" he added, dejectedly.

"You'll have to marry and settle down some day!" Blondie exclaimed quickly.

"To whom?" asked Lurline, sharply.

"That's a long story—If I treated you badly, I'm sorry—very sorry . . . and thanks, little Blondie, for a sweet thought. I've always known you were fine—fine . . . Goodbye, kids!"

"Good luck, mister . . ." Blondie said, her voice breaking under the strain.

Silently they raised their glasses to each other and drank.

"Heigh!" . . . "Heigh!" called Blondie, putting down her glass.

"Get a mirror!" sobbed Lurline. "My tears have gone black."

In Blondie's bedroom Lurline [illegible]

"Like it?" asked Blondie.

"I'm going to have my place done in silver and black—modern, you know," Lurline said, as Blondie left the room.

East Captured by Garner

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

John Garner has met the Eastern Democrats and found out they ain't so fierce.

Jack told 'em he started voting Democrat when he was 13. That gives him a two-year start on everybody.

Down on the Rio Grande they must allow a voter a couple of years to reach the polls because they ain't sure he's going to get there. Jack was about ready to tear up national headquarters. But he agreed to wait until the open season when he learned that he was entitled to a bag limit of 50 fat Republicans.

There ain't anybody riding herd on him. Looks like we finally picked a Vice-President who will get a seat for his sister at Washington banquets.

Hattie Caraway's Impressive Victory in U. S. Senate Fight Significant

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

DECRIERS OF THE WOMEN who "do things" are fond of making the point that the best which the best of these women can do is to beat one another—that in sport or business or politics even the women leaders are bound to take second rank, if there is a serious competition between them and men.

Senator Hattie Caraway has just proved the fallacy of this assumption so flattering to the male sex. For she has won by a landslide, against a field of SIX MEN her Democratic [illegible] in Arkansas to election. She [illegible] as many votes as the [illegible] six opponents [illegible] of her State that the first woman to serve in the United States Senate has [illegible] good.

Moreover she won her race against [illegible] handicaps. The [illegible] her to take her husband's seat after his death and her [illegible] election for the short remainder of his term were taken at the time to be merely the gallant political gesture which has waved so many widows of Congressmen into Congress. Several veterans of public life in Arkansas [illegible]

A MONTH'S START

[illegible] when last May the quiet little widow exploded the bombshell of her announcement that she would run to succeed herself.

All of her male opponents had more than a month's start of her [illegible] campaign, be[illegible] her political forces.

"I did not want to go home until all important business was finished in the Senate," she explained simply.

[illegible] Kingfish campaigned with her and of course he says he did it all. Of [illegible] contradict [illegible]. The fact remains that she won a sweeping victory against [illegible] to be Senator from Arkansas among them a Democratic national committeeman, a former Senator and a former Governor [illegible] to beat.

To women the especially interesting point about Mrs. Caraway's victory is that it is the latest of the many indications which forecast the dawn of woman's day in American political life.

For far too long we have had the condition of affairs summarized by Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy of New York when he admitted:

"The fact is that the women in party politics do the work and the men get the jobs."

IT IS UNFAIR.

Unfair? Of course. But, more than [illegible] of the [illegible] material in the country [illegible] shrewd [illegible] capable group of women from [illegible] 60 who have brought up their children and whose [illegible] would be of the greatest [illegible] government.

"There is a type of woman," says Elmer Davis, in the current Harper's—"of middle-aged married woman, for the metal must be forged by experience—that is the hope of society. If any given expert advice (and she would know enough to get it) a woman like that could govern the country far better than any man who will be elected next November.

"For the dominant trait of the best women is realism: an educated insight into values, a cool remorseless discrimination between what you want and what you can get. They are willing to plunge when the situation requires it, but they know exactly where they are plunging and why."

Obesity Great Danger to Health

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

THERE are [illegible] disadvantages in weight [illegible] carry [illegible] lowered resistance to [illegible] and [illegible] disease.

Obesity [illegible] overweight [illegible] creeping, growing danger of modern life. We know [illegible] nothing about [illegible].

Dr Copeland

Most persons who are overweight are careless in their eating but they eat too frequently [illegible] much of the wrong [illegible] overweight [illegible]. Regardless of what [illegible] to realize that overweight is not normal, and should [illegible]. It is a definite menace to health.

One of the [illegible] overweight [illegible] diabetes. Fat people [illegible] tendency toward this [illegible]. Although [illegible] diabetes it is more often found in those who are overweight. [illegible] many during the World War when the food supply was [illegible] fats and sweets there was a marked decrease in the number of new cases of diabetes. [illegible] lost weight and were unable to get those [illegible] that promote diabetes.

In former years medical students were taught that a person who was fair, fat and 40 was in danger of gall bladder disease, and that it is true that gallstones are more common [illegible] in overweight than in underweight persons.

Another abnormality frequently found in the obese is high blood pressure, and when neglected this leads to disturbances of the heart and kidneys.

One may complain of shortness of breath and attribute it to his weight. In reality, it is due to a change in the muscles of the heart. Fatty degeneration of heart muscles is common in those who are markedly overweight, and if neglected may prove very serious.

If you are too fat or much too thin, I would advise you to talk with your doctor. It may be well to have a thorough physical examination to find out whether there is anything fundamentally wrong.

'Don't Know If I'm Bad or Good!'

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I NEVER KNOW
Which I am—or
What I want to be—
Bad or good.

When I am with Good people,
I want be good
I go through all
The good motions.
I'm filled with
Visions and ecstacies
And holy heartbreaks
I love God
And my neighbor
I'd do anything world
And I want to Save the world!
To save the
I'd be burned
Or crucified
Live in poverty,
I'd do anything
To save the world.

Elsie Robinson

Of course I know
It's partly conceit—
I realize I'm getting
A kick out of seeing Myself as a savior—
I really want
To be good

And yet
Right the next minute,
If I'm with bad people,
Excitingly bad people,
I flop clean around

I feel it's gorgeous
To be reckless—
I [illegible] to flame
And whoop with joy at
The impudent exploits
Of some Bad Baby—
And decide to be
A tough guy myself

When I'm with Good people sinners
Burn me up—
But when I'm with Sinners saints give me
A [illegible] kick!
Yet I'm honest
Both times!

How can that be?
How can I be
Both kinds of people?
Maybe it's because
I am both kinds!
Maybe it's because
I'm alive—and hungry—
Hungry to be things
Hungry to know things
Hungry for Truth—
And Truth is Where you find it,
And you find it
Everywhere
Is that the answer?
Is that
The way I am?
Is that the way
Everybody is?
I BET IT IS!

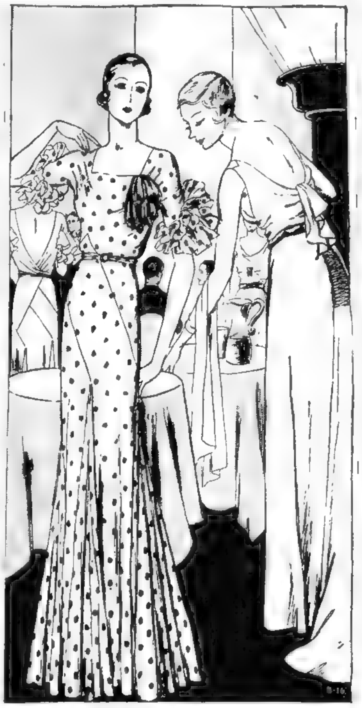
SKETCHED IN PARIS



Mirando's dotted dress is in white, with immense dots of deep gray, often seen with a flower-like ornament of starched chiffon in deep red or some other rich color. As the sketch shows, the skirt is made amply full through several circular godets put in at just above knee height. The dress fits closely about the waist by means of an ingenious closing device: the blouse crosses low at the back, forming two sash-ends, which wrap around the waist and fasten at the front. Augusta Bernard uses flat shirrings in place of plaits or tucks on the plain-colored chiffon dress, as illustrated at the right in the sketch.

Party for Bride-to-Be

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Are there any other plans one can make for a bride-to-be besides a shower and a pre-nuptial party? I have invited [illegible] both of these to be held for a bride [illegible] as I know [illegible] about these things and [illegible] anxious to give something [illegible] I wonder if you have other suggestions for me? If you wish to [illegible] your party [illegible] in honor of the bride-to-be [illegible] charming and distinguished kind of party to give. The table can be set with a bridal appearance [illegible] decorations of all-white or white and pink flowers and the corsages at each place carrying out the same gay effect. Placecards, too, can be very interesting in this kind of party, but not overdone. If you wish to invite both girls and men, why not plan to have a Sunday evening buffet party? Everyone likes these and perhaps no one will plan this kind of party. Here again your central decorations of the buffet table may be of white or white and pink flowers.

Dishes That Mr. Budget Approves

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

IN THESE DAYS when we're all trying to make the work of one dollar do the work of two we have to plan our menus under the watchful eye of Mr. Budget. Yet, at the same time, be sure that we do not sacrifice nutriment to economy.

I don't know any more delicious dishes than cheese fondue; scalloped tomatoes, bread crumbs and cheese; potatoes au gratin, and other similar cheese combinations. And they certainly do give us much for our money.

I wonder if you wouldn't like to try these three favorites.

CHEESE AND RICE FONDUE

1 cup scalded milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
¼ tsp. salt
3 eggs
1 cup cooked rice
1 tbsp. butter

Cut the chateau cheese in small pieces. Mix scalded milk, soft bread crumbs, chateau cheese, butter and salt. Stir until cheese is melted. Add egg yolks, beaten until lemon color. Fold in cooked rice and lastly stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 minutes or until done. Serves eight.

CHEESE FRENCH TOAST

1-3 of ½-lb. pkg. chateau cheese.
2 eggs.
⅓-cup milk.
⅛-teaspoon pepper.

Allow chateau cheese to stand at room temperature until softened. Force through a sieve. Toast bread and sprinkle one slice generously with cheese. Cover with other slice of bread. Cut in quarters. Place in baking pan. Beat eggs slightly. Combine with milk and seasonings. Pour over toast and cheese in baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 minutes or until golden brown. Serve immediately. Serves four.

CHATEAU RAREBIT

1 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. cornstarch
½ cup thin cream or top milk
¼ tsp. mustard
Few grains soda
Few grains cayenne
⅛ tsp. Worcestershire Sauce or Tobasco Sauce
Paprika

Daily True Story

A Fair Price

SHERIFF TOM JACKSON and Bill Trainor pulled up their horses before the open lateral shaft of the Buckshot Mine.

"I reckon he's inside," Trainer grunted. "He moved all his stuff back there last week after he heard the court decision. Said all tarnation wouldn't pry him loose."

"It's the law, ain't it?" Trainor snapped.

Trainor laughed shortly. "Rough deal? He's made 10 thousand out of mine. I don't call that a rough deal."

"He's developed the place," Jackson reminded him. "He thought he owned it; thought the title was clear."

"But it wasn't."

"Yeah, I know that's what the courts said," answered the sheriff, sarcastically. "But let's get this over. I'll handle it, much as I hate to. You keep out."

Raising his voice, the sheriff called: "Ed! Oh, Ed!"

FOOTSTEPS SOUNDED

Footsteps sounded in the rocky passage and a short, stooped figure moved out into the light of day. His face was wrinkled; his hair, matted and grey. He looked as though he might have been fifty—or seventy. The half smile that crossed his face when he recognized the sheriff faded as he turned to look at Bill Trainor, and his features twisted into a blazing spasm of hate.

"You!" he snarled.

Ed Bristol's claw-like hand crept down to the gun holstered at his hip. Trainor edged his horse away. The sheriff didn't move.

"You might kill me, Ed," he said, slowly, "but you can't fight the law. Another would come in my place. No, Ed, you can't beat the law."

For a moment Bristol hesitated, his body rigid, his hand tense above his gun. Then his body seemed to shrink and his arms dropped helplessly. He didn't speak, but the sheriff nodded to Trainor and the two men swung off of their horses.

"The stuff all inside, Ed?" Jackson asked.

Bristol nodded. "In there." He pointed down the shaft. "I—I've down a lot of work," he said. "What I got out of the Buckshot last year I sent to my darter. I—I ough to be paid a fair price for what I've done this month."

"Paid?" Trainor sneered. "I'll pay—nothing!"

Bristol passed a shaking hand across his face. He looked dazed. "Just a fair price," he repeated. "All I want is eighteen dollars."

LOOKED AT BRISTOL

The sheriff looked at Bristol, suprised. He turned to look at Trainor. The latter motioned to his head. His lips formed the word: "Crazy," and the sheriff nodded.

Grinning, Trainor passed the $18 to Bristol and said, "Thanks, sheriff, for what you've done. Take him to town. I'm going to look the stuff over." Trainor sauntered into the entrance of the mine. Bristol grinned crazily.

Sheriff Tom Jackson climbed up on his horse and pulled the dispossessed mine owner into position behind him. Old Ed had said that he didn't have anything to take with him, and the sheriff was glad to get away. He wanted to get the whole business over as soon as possible. They started back to town...

The sky was clouded and added to the dismal spirits of the two men. Once there was the sound of a terrific clap of thunder and the sheriff mentioned that it might rain. Bristol grunted and—grinned some more.

When the train stopped at Gunsight that evening Ed Bristol climbed on board. He hadn't talked much about the affair at the mine, but he seemed to have plenty of money. This fact prompted the sheriff to ask about the $18.

"It was a fair price for what I did," Bristol said.

"You couldn't have done much, then."

"No, not much, but—enough," grinned Old Ed.

As the train was pulling out, Bristol stuck his head out of the window and called: "Ask Phil Matthews about that $18."

WASTED NO TIME

Tom Jackson wasted no time in hunting up Matthews and in telling him the whole story, but Phil was as puzzled as the sheriff—puzzled, that is, for a time. Suddenly, Matthews leaned back in his chair and whistled.

"Tom," he said. "I think I know now what Old Ed meant by the crazy words and actions which you've described. I can tell you if you'll not do anything until tomorrow. Bill Trainor deserved it. He was a scoundrel if there ever was one."

"What do you mean?"

"Will you give Bristol a chance?"

"Sure—but what——?

"Alright, listen. There isn't a doubt but that Bristol's really crazy. He came to me several weeks ago. He knew I was from the east; knew what I did back there. He asked me a question and I answered it and wondered for several days what it was all about. Now I understand.

"I used to be an undertaker. Bristol asked me what the charge was where I came from for opening and closing a grave. The charge was $18."

"Then the thunder I heard—" the sheriff started.

"Must have been dynamite!" said Matthews.

"And the $18——"

"A fair price—for opening and closing Trainor's grave in the Buckshot Mine," explained Phil.

Foolish to Get 'Mad,' Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two years ago I met a boy whom I liked very much. We went together for a year. One night we had a quarrel over a silly thing. Ever since he has not spoken to me except on a few occasions. But people have told me that he still likes me. Now, Miss Fairfax, I love this boy and I can't be content with anyone else. My girl friend told me that he and I are just alike. She said that we are both stubborn and neither of us will give in. Will you please tell me what to do, as I love him so much. B. H.

Dear B. H. Aren't you two foolish to indulge in a childish 'mad' like this when you could both be happy? The next time you see the stubborn young man just give him your sweetest smile and say that you think this misunderstanding has gone far enough, and doesn't he? It is always the stronger, better balanced one who makes the first move toward a reconciliation in a case of this kind, when there is really no reason for being 'mad.'

THE FOOLISH PARENT AND HIS WISE (?) SON

By B. C. FORBES

A son had a foolish father—so he thought. The old man hadn't the right idea about money and business.

He kept on spending millions advertising the family product notwithstanding that the son assured him everybody knew how good it was, as proved by the steadily increasing sales.

Also, the extravagant father persisted in squandering a shocking amount of money in maintaining a research department for the purpose of trying to make the product better and better and to think up other things to expand demand.

The old man, instead of pocketing all the profit and using it to enable himself and his son—especially the son—to live in glittering regal style, was obsessed by the notion that most of the profits should be "plowed back into the business," as he called it.

Since the son was the only child, he felt sourly rebellious against all these nonsensical, deplorable ways of dissipating his patrimony.

But the stubborn old gentleman would not listen to reason.

When he died, he left the son only two or three millions outside the business, a business that was yielding enormous yearly profits, despite all the wasting of money on advertising and research.

Son Inaugurates Improvements

The son lost no time in putting his ideas into effect.

Inheritance taxes were heavy and there were a number of substantial bequests to meet. This presented no problem whatsoever to the son. He ordered all advertising cancelled.

Next he made a clean sweep of the rather queer specimens of humanity who comprised the research department.

Product Self-Selling, Ads Cut

He figured how much these savings would total per annum—and became intoxicated by the vision of wealth that would flow torrentially into his lap.

The world contained nothing he could not now command. He forthwith launched upon expenditures befitting an opulent emperor. His world-beating yacht, his palaces and his other rapidly-acquired possessions raised him high in the limelight. This he enormously enjoyed.

Of course, he had little time to spare for business. That didn't matter, because the product was so attractive that it sold itself in glorious volume.

Five years passed.

After the death duties and the bequests were paid, he found that his own lavish acquisitions cost a lot and that his new scale of living consumed cash faster than he had anticipated.

So he kept on using for his own purposes the money which formerly went into advertising and research.

Fate then began to deal him mysterious, cruel, unfair blows. A competitor whom he had always haughtily regarded as of no account was eating heavily into his business. This competitor had as foolish notions as his father. He advertised more and more extensively each year as his sales mounted; he paid a ludicrous salary to the fellow who headed his puny—but growing—research department; he frequently made changes in the appearance of the product and claimed that the quality also was being greatly improved.

Somehow the public was gullible enough to swallow such claims, with the result that this upstart's sales eclipsed his own.

As production went down, profits went down even faster. To maintain his princely style of living, it became necessary to saddle the property with as heavy a mortgage as he could raise.

Sheriff Gets All

When the sheriff loomed on the horizon—but not until then—he suddenly realized that perhaps his father had not been such a fool after all. He would imitate him.

P. S.—Maybe there is a timely moral in at least part of this tale.

'BUY NOW' MOVE TO AID REVIVAL

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, Aug 17 (US)—President Hoover's business conference at Washington on August 25 will be an attempt to reinterpret the "buy now" movement.

In November [illegible] the [illegible] executive ushered in the depression with White House conferences. The new attempt to hasten the exit of the depression through [illegible] efforts between government and business.

The new meeting will be somewhat less haphazard, inasmuch as it will include members of the 12 committees in each of the Federal Reserve districts, which have been studying ways and means of utilizing credit more effectively for business expansion. Incidentally, the committees have been inquiring whether any worthy borrowers have been turned down by the banks.

Inasmuch as so many artificial stimulants to business have proven mere ballyhoo, there is a good deal of reserve and skepticism as to what will come from the forthcoming meeting. In my opinion the success of the conference will depend largely on whether the business situation is now so well liquidated that it is ready to go forward.

Still on the dead center business needs a stimulus, and the presidential notion evidently is that this can be given through putting the indications that the depression has run its course on the front page.

The agenda, as stated, is vague enough to include most everything. However, unless the discussion includes a brass tacks analysis of the paralyzing disparity between raw material prices and prices for finished goods, it will not get far. One of the important conferees will be Owen D Young.

Decreases in the average prices of [illegible] wheat, [illegible] dried beans, fresh apples, oranges, peanuts, seeds, leaf tobacco, onions, potatoes in Chicago and Portland, and wool, were shown for July.

Food price increases were reported for butter, cheese, bananas, fresh cured beef, lamb, mutton, fresh and cured pork, veal, beverages, copra, lard, raw and granulated sugar, edible tallow, tea, and vegetable oils. Financial Market News, Notes and Comment

'REGULAR' ON TELEPHONE IS NO SURPRISE

By FRANK H. MELOON

Declaration of the regular dividend on American Telephone today was no surprise. The declaration was forecast here yesterday. Just before the time for announcement today a false tip was circulated in Wall and State Sts that the dividend had been cut. This was said to have been responsible for some selling at that stage of the market. "Selling on the good news" came later, as was the case when Telephone made its last previous declaration. Today's action disposes of Telephone's indecision until after the election.

Hugh Butler, New England manager of the U S Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce points [illegible] severe economies [illegible] the department. Nevertheless Mr Butler states the local branch is making every effort to keep its service unimpaired. He notes that in the past [illegible] New England export [illegible] cal bureau has had an important part in the securing of more than $15,000,000 worth of export business which this section would not otherwise have enjoyed.

"We are here in the Boston office for the purpose of serving you in so far as it is within our powers. The restriction of government funds for the purpose of maintaining contact with you makes this more difficult than heretofore. For example, our travel funds have been wiped out; nevertheless, we here have not let this deter us, and we have continued to travel at our own expense. Similarly, our telephone allowance has been severely reduced," says Mr Butler.

STATE ST. Hears:

That this is not a good spot to consider the purchase of equities. It is well to remember that for the better part of a week, higher than average volume has accompanied some pretty violent fluctuations. Ordinarily this is reliable evidence that a setback of fair proportions is in the making and traders might wait and see if the rule again proves true.

Reaction Logical

Without even pretending to a bearish outlook it is posible to see why a setback at this point is the logical thing. Stock prices have had a remarkable rise that easily compensates for what happened on the downside from March to early July.

Some measure of correction is only the proper thing. Consider, as suggested here yesterday, that [illegible] are at present experiencing a boomlet. If this is to continue [illegible] up into election time it is hardly logical to expect a [illegible] actionless movement.

Canadian interests are too well [illegible] to even dream of a [illegible] to higher levels. They know that from now on they must adopt tactics designed to encourage [illegible] frighten, business [illegible] unlikely that the near future will see the Dow-Jones index at close to 52.55.

Odds and Ends

Lorillard and Gillette have aroused a little suspicion in the eyes of observers who are familiar with their action. This is due the fact that both stocks are regarded as tail-enders, used by a Boston professional to cover up his distributing activities in other directions.

There is one possibility of higher prices before reaction that must not be overlooked. If the rails break through upside resistance at 32-33 and the industrials at 71-72 the whole market could take on new life. Gains of 5 points by the rails and 10 by the industrials might then be scored.

On the charts it is said there is a very suspicious gap between the Monday and Tuesday ranges. For the benefit of the uninitiated the chartists explain this is known as an exhaustion gap sometimes seen at the end of upward moves, and forecasting a reaction. H. E. B

New York, Aug 17 (AP) Seats on the various commodity exchanges are rising in value in response to the broader trading interest and advancing trend in the leading raw materials markets.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

THOSE who expected a quick upside response to today's declaration of the regular dividend by American Telephone were disappointed. Such a rise had been predicted by a number of market letter writers. The last previous such declaration by American Telephone, as these writers appeared to have forgotten, was followed by "selling on the good news."

Important Silver News Is Awaited

National Distillers Whiskey Boom Fails

Failure of the announced whiskey bonus to National Distillers stockholders to revive the spirits of the pool handling the present market for the stock has induced profit taking by traders who bought in anticipation of the news. It is also said to reflect reluctance on the part of the public to speculate prematurely on the legalization of distilled alcohol products. The novel plan adopted by the company is thought to have been influenced by a desire to solve a burdensome inventory position.

United Aircraft Preferred Stock

Reports are being revived that United Aircraft will soon call for retirement of its preferred stock.

Canadian Issues Gaining in Favor

Shares of Canadian enterprises with an active market here are receiving greater favorable attention than for some time. Some members of the group have received aggressive sponsorship on former occasions. Similar efforts are being directed to Dominion Stores, a conservatively managed Canadian food and grocery chain. Last year the company earned $1[illegible] a share and for the [illegible] months this year reported 80 cents a share compared with an annual dividend of $1.20 a share.

Beer Manufacturers' Outlook Studied

A prominent Stock Exchange firm has issued a special summary of the position of concerns that might be benefited by a resumption of beer manufacture.

South Porto Rico Sugar May Resume

Dividend resumption on South Porto Rico Sugar common is anticipated later this month by sources closest to the management. Belief is that a quarterly payment of either 35 or 40 cents a share will be declared placing the issue on an annual basis of $1.40 or $1.60. Last disbursement on the common was [illegible] cents a share on January 2, 1931. Return to a dividend basis will be amply justified by earnings and the company's financial position, it is said.

Shattuck Shares Quietly Bought

Quiet buying is reported taking place in Shattuck stock. The company earned 12 cents a share in the June quarter this year, and a total of 32 cents in the first six months. The quarterly income compared with 41 cents in the same three months of 1931, and the half-year net compared with 84 cents last year.

Although the company is conservatively managed, the stock at times has enjoyed very vigorous market sponsorship.

Int'l Silver Price Outlook

Speculative interests are seeking to revive general bullishness toward International Silver. The major hope of the bulls is that the price of silver the commodity, will improve, thereby enhancing the value of International Silver's inventory.

The company reported for the first half of 1932 a deficit equal to $11.78 a share on its stock.

Industrial Rayon Is Run at a Loss

New York, Aug 17 (AP) The Industrial Rayon Corp. for the first six months of the year reports a net loss of $114,812 compared with [illegible] of $64,[illegible] [illegible] reported by the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. [illegible] with a net profit of $[illegible] first six months of last year. [illegible] Distributing Corp for the first six months had a net [illegible] of $[illegible] compared with a profit [illegible] first half of last year.

Canadian National Gross Is Lowered

Montreal, Aug 17—Canadian National Railways gross in week ended Aug 14 totaled $2,3[illegible] against $3,195,883 in the like 1931 period, a decrease of $839,6[illegible].

SPECTATOR Says:

The market gave further signs of its growing shockproof character as wheat took a nosedive. This followed a similar demonstration on Monday when Du Pont cut the dividend. Stocks acted very convincingly. The bulls apparently have everything under control and stocks look higher.

Buying on Dips

The public is being nursed into the belief that the market can be bought on all dips. One should be extremely careful for it may be that one of these dips will go right through some day.

Stocks were worked lower in today's late dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange after selling irregularly higher in the forenoon. Price range was narrow. Declaration of the regular dividend by American Telephone did little to hearten the bulls, and the stocks slipped [illegible] over a point.

New York Bonds

STOCKS LOWER, BUT RALLY IN FINAL HOUR

New York, Aug. 17—Stocks ran off one to 8 points in midafternoon dealings on the New York Stock Exchange today, earlier irregularity, but rebounded toward the close. Trading quieted on the rally.

In the final rally recessions were cut in half in many cases.

TRADING IS ERRATIC

In erratic trading Case in the last hour recovered about half of its loss of nearly 8. Losses of about 5 to 7 in American Telephone, Union Pacific and Auburn were at the same time cut in half. Allied Chemical rallied after sagging 4. U. S. Steel partially recovered a 2-point loss. The turnover exceeded 3,000,000 shares.

The bond market was fairly firm, but bullish efforts in shares received little support from the commodity markets. Bullish efforts to get a following in the motion picture and public utility issues met with little success.

The list pushed up 1 to 3 points here and there in the morning, but reacted to show losses of 1 to 6 just in the afternoon. American Telephone's regular dividend announcement brought only a momentary rally.

Strong spots in the morning rise were Loew's and American Water Works up about 3. Westinghouse rose 2 and Bangor and Aroostook 3, to new 1932 highs at the day's best.

Inasmuch as the list as a whole was halted as it approached the upper resistance levels of last week in the rise early yesterday, traders were inclined to pursue a somewhat more cautious attitude for a time, pending more decisive indications that the rally was to be resumed. The rather erratic swings in the list both yesterday and today also tended to make for caution.

Foreign buying is said by brokers with foreign connections to have subsided during the past few days, although a little continues to trickle in, coming even from such far lands as India. On the other hand, there has been no rush on the part of foreigners to take profits.

"REGULAR" EXPECTED

American Telephone's regular dividend had been rather confidently forecast in well-informed quarters so that it had been fairly well discounted in advance.

Nevertheless, it was felt in some quarters that the full disbursement would not have been ordered without some hopeful indications of business improvement. Telephone disconnections in June and July reached record numbers, but are unofficially said to have diminished somewhat of late. Recent earnings nevertheless are understood to have been sharply under the $9 annual dividend rate.

Bullish efforts in the stock market received little support from midweek business statistics. The bidding up of the motion picture stocks was based on the fact that theater attendance usually picks up sharply in the autumn, and in recent months the companies have drastically reduced their expenses.

The weekly electric power production figures were about a standoff. While showing a slight decline from the previous week, the degree of reduction from last year remained unchanged at 13.1 per cent.

TELEPHONE TO PAY REGULAR

New York, Aug. 17—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. dividend record was kept inviolate today when directors declared the regular quarterly payment of $2.25 a share.

While the declaration at the annual $9 rate had been generally expected, there was naturally some doubt up to the time of the actual declaration, since the dividend had not been currently earned. The declaration, however, was plainly foreshadowed by yesterday's action of New England Telephone directors in declaring the "regular."

Directors of the American Sugar Refining Co. today ordered the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, payable Oct. 3 to stock of record Sept. 5. Declaration of the regular payment had been expected in Wall St. in view of the recent upturn in sugar prices.

Van Raalte Co. omitted dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock due at this time. In the three preceding quarters payments of $1.75 each were made for account of accumulations.

Endicott Johnson Runs at a Profit

Although the Endicott Johnson Corporation showed a small loss of $4580 after taxes, interest and depreciation, inventory adjustments, etc., in the first half of 1932, this was entirely due to inventory losses due to serious price declines, and conditions are favorable to a far better showing in the second half. The company is now operating at a profit.

Power Production Is Off a Little

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—The National Electric Light Association today announced a slight reduction in the nation's power production for the week ended August 13, but this was apparently of seasonal scope. Aggregate production was placed at 1,415,122,000 kilowatt hours against 1,426,986,000 the week before.

Heating Oil Price to Be Advanced

Chicago, Aug. 17—Next week retailers in metropolitan Chicago area will advance tank wagon prices on furnace and fuel oils ½ and ¼ cent a gallon, respectively, reflecting strength of the bulk market the past three weeks. Market had been firm for some 60 days and more recently buyers rushed in when it developed that, due to reduced refinery operations, there was a scarcity of heating oils. Current market on No. 1 distillate used for domestic fuel, is 2½ to 2¾ cents a gallon.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 17—City Savings Bank & Trust Co. of Alliance, Ohio, will reopen Aug. 22. Approximately $200,000 in cash will be released immediately. It was one of three leading banks in Stark County to close last October. A court ruling authorizing reopening of George D. Harter Bank, largest financial institution in Canton, is likely shortly.

Central-Pennsy. Savings Are Big

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—The New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads in a joint statement report that by co-operation between their respective managements they have been able to save 4,339,000 passenger train miles per annum by reducing their New York-Chicago service 54 per cent. Due to further strength in scrap markets the Iron Age composite price for heavy melting steel increased this week to $6.92 a ton, the highest since early June and a gain of 50 cents a ton from the year's low of early July. The pig iron composite price declined to $13.64 a ton, the lowest since August, 1913, as a result of weakness in Philadelphia. Finished steel is unchanged at 1.976 cents a pound.

They would probably get it plenty.

Personally, we would suggest that women get what they want while making it as obscure as possible.

We might as well suggest it—they do anyway.

What Do You Make of This, Mister Babson?

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

It is amazing the number of young men and boys, black and tan and white, that travel North First st. from the Commercial Hotel to the timber, on Sundays going west in a. m., returning between 12 and 1, and again west after dinner and returning most any time in the evening or night. They have headquarters down there, where they congregate and indulge in a great game shooting craps.

PUBLIC RELATIONS DEPARTMENT

NOTE—Today's letter from Lord Hallerhan, Middlesex, England, is picked at random from our bin of unopened mail, and printed as an example of the healthy criticism from readers which this department welcomes. In fact, we often pay $5 worth of attention to the most inspiring letter of the week. We print Lord Hallerhan's letter and congratulate him for his courage and foresight.

Cycling has taken first place among all classes and demands recognition from young and old, affording rapid transit and healthful recreation. What of the etiquette of cycling? It is imperative, though elastic. A comfortable saddle, high and wide in the rear, narrower in front, is convenient. Bell and cyclometer are pleasureable fads. A lady can be as reserved on her bicycle as in her parlor—and will never permit a stranger to accost her except in case of accident. The cyclist's slogan should be, "Assist the timed, but never mock at awkwardness." Breathe thru the nostrils. The moment a cyclist opens the mouth, you may know he is overtaxed. Carry an ammonia gun for barking dogs. When they run in your path you may take a "header." Raise your hat to a passing lady only when you are an expert. Never leave the bicycle in a dark hall for people to stumble over.

Lord Hallerhan,
Wheelmen's League.

RADIO SITUATIONS AVED

Washer Useless Without Shirt

By N. F. T.

When a man buys time on the air to help sell whatever he makes, broadcasting bosses prepare themselves for most anything. Even an electric washing machine had an audition the other day.

FOR THE LOVE OF "MIKE"

Realistic sound effects
Keep Radio men Alert,
To make a washer do it's stuff,
An announcer gave his shirt.
Ray D. O'Scribe.

HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED

Some artificial gadget used in an effort to create the impression of a washing machine going strong, didn't appeal to an executive of the company making said appliance. What's more, he wouldn't have it. There was nothing left for studio men and engineers to do but bring his famous device itself before the sound box. Aiming to please, radio program planners never let a prospect be lost to the networks because of a mere trifle. But alas, when the mechanical dirt destroyer was set in motion, everything else was lost. After all, it was not intended that the musical theme, announcements and vocal selections should b drowned completely. Incidentally folks on the receiving end might not understand. So Mr. Maker, of the washing machine makers, smiled knowingly. Of course his labor saver made racket. There should be something in it to wash. Indeed, then they would all see how quietly it went about things. Very well, where then might a few dirty clothes be found? Not so easy, with time so limited for this particular audition. A staff member to the rescue. Engineer De Witt Brown calmly took the shirt from his back, clean as it is reported to have been. Into the yawning bowl of yon washer went said shirt. Swish, swish, swishety swish! Smooth as the revelations of a Hindu crystal gazer came the desired effect. Realism achieved, a sponsor satisfied and a bit of white broadcloth haberdashery well laundered. Moral: Never let a washing machine go without a shirt while broadcasting. Take the announcers.

ART ADVANCEMENT

An offering devoted to promoting interest in looking at pictures gets underway (WEEI) locally next Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon between 5 and 5:15. A more substantial appreciation of paintings, is the object behind this effort, arranged by Ella Munsterberg, daughter of the late psychology Prof. Munsterberg of Harvard University. Miss Munsterberg will conduct the weekly series personally and has prepared her own material for discussion on the air.

For the first time in six years, E. B Rideout, the veteran weather man at old WEEI, will take a vacation. No doubt he did some fair and warmer prognosticating for his own benefit before deciding upon these next two weeks as suitable for spending at Calais, Me.

Tonight's "Music Sampler" program, staged (WEEI) by Organist Del Castillo weekly on Wednesdays, features vocal renditions by Tenor Bruce Norman. It also marks the latter's last radio appearance hereabouts for a period of several weeks.

That eclipse, scheduled for the sun to execute on the 31st of this month, has radio rajahs exercised aplenty. Now it is additionally planned for NBC to pick up an airplane description of what is happening from somewhere over Magog, Canada. Magog is a point 90 miles from Montreal and declared highly desirable as a location from which to view it all.

HEARST PAPERS ADVOCATE

1—The five billion dollar loan to relieve unemployment and put billions of dollars into immediate circulation.

2—Adoption of 5 per cent sales tax and reduction in income taxes, releasing income to finance industry.

3—Immediate modification of the Volstead act, permitting light wines and beers, reviving industry and employment, providing government income, ending racketeering and restoring American personal liberty.

A Man's Man

New State Commander of American Legion

James P. Rose, elected State Commander, seems to be just about the type of a man to head the American Legion of Massachusetts—or any American Legion.

JAMES P. ROSE

He is a veteran of the Spanish War, the Philippine insurrection, the Mexican border and of eighteen months in France.

He was wounded at Chateau Thierry and refused to quit until he was wounded a second time and HAD TO QUIT. He has been thrice decorated for extraordinary bravery on the field of battle.

In time of peace this man is a man's man. The Suffolk County Grand Jury, eighteen years ago, cited him for personal bravery in exposing his life to rescue victims of the Arcadia House fire disaster here in Boston.

He is interested in social welfare work; that is, in improving the conditions of our average, humble people. In Jamaica Plain, they point him out as "the friend of the children." You would expect that, because children instinctively and unerringly know a real man.

James P. Rose was elected State Commander by a convention of war veterans who spoke out positively and plainly on their problems and their government. He looks like a good symbol of one of the best conventions this organization has ever held.

Deserve Chance to Work

Charlestown People Free of Aid Abuse

You read two interesting and significant statements in parallel columns of the Boston Evening American.

In one, a survey showing that the average workingman, even in normal times, earns barely enough to support his family, much less save a little nest egg for old-age or against a period of unemployment.

In the other, that Charlestown, a typical settlement of honest, hard-working people, has been notably free from the notorious abuse of public charity.

The police have not found there, as elsewhere, the type of people who sport automobiles, own their own homes, have money in the bank and yet, like the cheap chiselers they are, draw a weekly payment from the charity funds of the city of Boston.

This all bears out the statement that has been made repeatedly on this page—that the average workingman is a decent, honest fellow, who does not want a dole but only a chance to earn a day's pay, for which he will give a day's useful labor in return.

If these decent people of Charlestown are noble and dignified enough to avoid the temptation to secure the easy money of the charity dole from the city treasury, then they are good enough to be supplied with honorable work by their government. And they should be given a day's wage in keeping with their own fine dignity and citizenship. That's what the Five-Billion-Dollar Prosperity Loan would do.

By Edgar A. Guest

Just Folks

The Farmhand

I watched him in the blazing field,
Harrowing for September's yield,
A rugged lad in denim jeans,
A subject fit for pastoral scenes,
Which would have caught the eager eye
Of any artist passing by.

No mercy showed the blazing sun.
I watched the heat waves roll and run
Across the land, baked hard and brown,
And wondered if fine folks in town,
Who smile above their evening's bread,
Have any notion how they're fed.

So white and delicate and fair
It comes to table everywhere
That only farming people know
What suffering brings the wheat to grow,
And only country boys can tell
The toil that makes the soil do well.

Next winter when I sit to dine
Where silverware and glasses shine
And bread is passed, in fancy I
Will see, beneath a cloudless sky,
That boy enduring cruel heat
All day within a field of wheat.

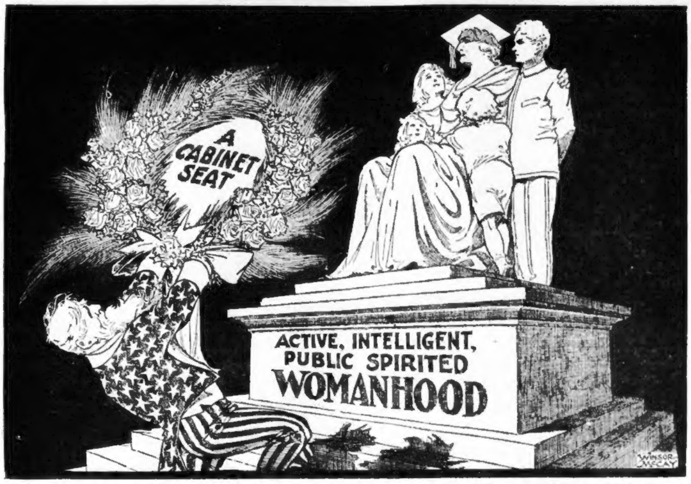
A Just Tribute



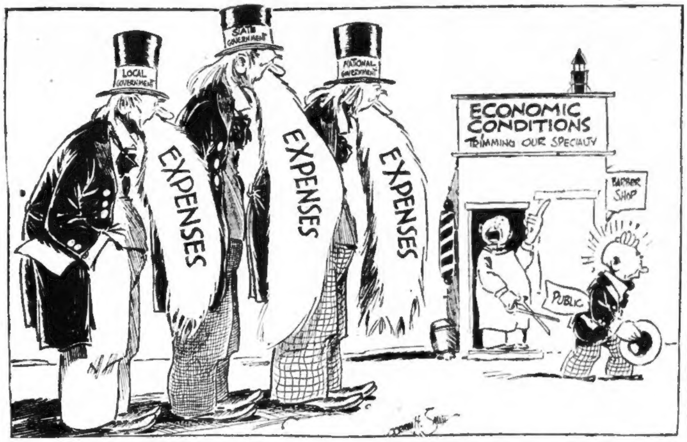
A CABINET SEAT
ACTIVE, INTELLIGENT, PUBLIC SPIRITED WOMANHOOD
WINSOR McCAY

This nation has lagged behind other countries in according women the more distinguished forms of official recognition. No post has been bestowed upon a woman that recognizes in the broadest way her ability to meet the tests of high executive or administrative office. THIS IS NOT AS IT SHOULD BE.

It is high time that women should not be absent from the consultative body which surrounds the President and directs the course of administration.

A seat in the Presidential Cabinet is but just recognition, long overdue, of America's active, intelligent, public-spirited womanhood.

"Next!"



The little bloke who pays the tax
Must take his daily trimming.
He gets the razor, shears and axe
Until his head is swimming,
While governmental whiskers wax
With energy undimming.

Expenses burgeon day by day,
Luxuriantly growing,
But now across the fields of hay
The harvest winds are blowing,
And if the Public has his way,
The time has come for mowing.

—George E. Phair.

O. O. McIntyre -:- New York Day by Day

Cabaret Life

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Cabaret life has been skimmed to "clip-joints," where patronage is solely strangers in town and gentlemen on the loose. They take the form of shady dance halls, side street speakeasies, cellar dives. Their safety is in the victim's fear of being dubbed a sucker.

The connection between gyp taxi drivers and such resorts is obvious, and freedom from arrest indicates protection. The driver suggests he knows a quiet place where the booze is "O. K." For this recommendation he gets 10 per cent of whatever is spent.

An added lure is a winking suggestion that "there is always a good looking dame or so about." Once inside, the "dames" flock to the victim, flattering him into buying. The catch is in the check addition. The amount depends upon the befuddlement of the customer.

A squawk is handled with underworld psychology. Beetle-browed bouncers appear in a snarling manner. "What's the big idea? Trying to be a cheap skate with these little ladies?" And so on. Just when a free-for-all is in prospect, the manager comes over.

He wants to know, and with suavity, what's it all about. Certainly no one gets anything but fair treatment in his "jeernt." He waves the hired pug-uglies away and is all sympathy. In the end a check for $200, which should be no more than $10, is settled for $50.

Starkly gripping phrases hurtle out of the tight-lipped underworld. There is the story of the gangster whose pal was riddled to death in a warehouse foray. The escaping gangster circled about to telephone the head bondsman. "Jim," he explained, "has just gone cool on us."

* * *

There are, too, various stories as to the origin of the greeting, "Hello sucker!" generally credited to Texas Guinan. It became well known along Broadway about 10 years ago, yet Arthur Somers Roche, the novelist, was waggishly addressing intimates thus 20 years ago. Just as he does today.

A depression attraction of public parks and street carnivals, this summer, was the Mouse Circus. Concessionaires, with thin bank rolls, herded together several hundred mice and charged five cents admission to see them. Placed in an enclosure with a few runways and revolving wheels, the mice, with no training whatever, put on an act chock-full of unexpected comedy.

I read this morning, George Eliot assumed this pseudonym because it was mouth-filling. "One has to roll it around and push it out," she told a friend. Vicki Baum's name suggests the premature explosion of a fire cracker. Then there is E. Sackville West, a writer, I always think of as a tailor. You know, sack, coat and vest.

Names invariably stir inane fancies. I've often wondered if Ben Ali Haggin ever met Achmed Abdullah, if Ricardo Cortez knows Jose Rodiquez or Vincent Lopez, Lupe Velez. Nor can I think of two dandier entrants for a footrace than Keats Speed and Serge Flash. I once thought a swell head-line was one I turned out for a pink sport extra in Cincinnati, reading: "Hug in a Neat Squeeze." But a sober-sided copy desk, with customary and damnable dubiety, changed it to "Huggins' Trick Puts Reds in Lead." And I went back to what was known as the "hotel and undertaker run."

On the staff, in those days, was a theological student turned journalist. His first assignment was a gasoline stove explosion in the suburb of Mh. Auburn, seriously burning a housewife. He briefed the essentials in the first sentence and whirled off into a rhapsody, thus: "When, O, when will women of this fair land learn the danger of a lighted match near gasoline?"

A New York psychiatrist tells me the majority of insane persons superscribe messages on backs of envelopes after sealing them for the mails. I'll go along quietly. And don't mind my talking to myself along the way.

For years, I've refused to read newspapers before getting out of bed. This morning I broke the rule, and the first thing was a gloomy interview of a man who said life was too big for him. I immediately decided it was for me, too, so rolled over and slept until noon.

Two Princes in "Boaters"

This Summer the "boater," stiff straw hat with flat brim, with which you are familiar, has "come back" in fashionable England with a vengeance.

The Prince of Wales, who amuses himself and helps the business of British merchants by setting fashions, thus causing the buying of new things, usually does his "fashion setting" in the direction of hard, common sense. He did that when he adopted the soft collar that you see him wearing in this picture—a collar with just sufficient starch to look well, not enough to squeeze the big blood vessels on the side of the neck or the important pneumogastric nerve that runs back of one of those great blood vessels.

Again, you will notice that he and his brother wear sensible loose clothes—both in this picture are dressed in a light flannel, the Prince of Wales striped, his brother, Prince George, plain gray.

The little pictures at the bottom show the Prince of Wales with varying expressions. You see him THINKING, on the left: observing something, his hat a little on one side, in the middle, and on the right presumably using the British equivalent of our "Is it hot enough for you?"

Restoring to fashion the hard, inflexible straw "boater" lately worn almost exclusively by women in England, the Prince of Wales has departed from his usual course, advocating something not very comfortable, not especially desirable from various points of view.

A hat with a tight band keeps the blood from circulating in the scalp and is said to be responsible for baldness. You see few bald WOMEN. Their hats do not fit tight and make a mark across the forehead and all around the top of the head. The soft straw hat, the panama and its various excellent imitations of various shapes, pliable, cool, is the sensible shape.

But hat shops are pleased, because the Prince and his brother, appearing in "boaters," sent a great many Britishers and endless Americans in London in haste to get "the latest."

Young gentlemen who realize that appearances are important, provided they do not use up too much of your mental energy, will study with interest the clothing and shoes of the royal brothers. You see that they both wear double-breasted coats. Their low shoes have fairly thick soles, toes not too pointed. The sleeves of their coats are short, which is sensible and cool, and the cuffs of their shirts, doubtless "attached," are also short. Unlike some misguided Americans, they do not wear cuffs that come down to the first joint of the thumb. The HAND of man, like the EARS of woman, should always be exposed, including part of the wrist of a man's hand. Hands and ears tell a great deal about character and ability.

The forehead also should be shown to its full height—no hair combed down over it. It is a great pity that women's styles so often cover their foreheads partly or entirely. In women the forehead is far more important than all the rest of the face. It shows intellect, for new ideas are born back of the forehead, and they are made into reality by the energy of the brain at the back of your head.

The lower part of the face, mouth, nose, etc., all have a meaning, but they have to do with the animal rather than the spiritual side of the human being. The eyes, "windows of the soul," have a particular part to play in the human countenance. They indicate frankness or the lack of it, for one thing, and in women they indicate purity of mind. What you do is written in them.
